DEMOCRATS TO BE UNITED IN U. S. CONGRESS

Party Likely to Show
Stronger Minority Views
Under Hoover Regime

AL'S PLEA SIGNIFICANT

If Party Disintegrates Split
Among Republican Fac-
tions Is Forecast

Washington—Instead of a crushed and disintegrated Democracy which might lead to the break-up of the two-party system in America, there is a likelihood of a stronger and more powerful minority during the Hoover administration acting as a check on the majority party.

The speech of Governor Smith was significant of what the leaders of the Democratic party hope to do but it was even more important as a preventive against possible breakup of the majority party.

Immediately after the election there was so much resentment talk on the part of the Democrats, who in despair felt that they could accomplish no more inside the Democratic party, that the possibility of their voting with the Republican party hereafter came to the surface. The experience in politics in the west has revealed that when a group in the electorate fails to attain its objective in one party it goes into the other.

If millions of voters who support the Democratic nominee should shift so that the Republican party embraced three-fourths of the voting population, the next step would be the development of an eastern and western Republicanism or a conservative and progressive cleavage. The latter realignment has been predicted for a long time and may yet come about but if the Republican party is to be broken up by it, the people responsible for it will be those who forsake the Democratic party.

MAY PREVENT CLEAVAGE

Governor Smith's outspokenly referred to the Democratic party as the liberal party, the party of progressives. If the leaders can make of the minority party the organization of progressives and liberals, WASAU — (P) — Herbert Wood- ward, upon whose farm near Scho- field, Motorcyclist Policeman John DeLille was fatally wounded Sunday, pleaded guilty to charges of bur- glary here Wednesday afternoon and was bound over to circuit court which holds a term next week.

Investigation of the shooting by police resulted in the discovery of a quantity of stolen goods on Woodward's farm. He was identified as the burglar who had entered a merchandise store in Ringle, Wis.

Meanwhile, search is being continued for the men who shot De-Lille. Murder warrants have been issued for a man named Brady and "John Doe." Police planned to question Woodward in connection with the case as he has told officers that Brady accompanied him when the Ringle store was robbed.

WIFE SMOKED—SHOOTS HER AND KILLS HIMSELF

Los Angeles—(P)—Angered at the sight of his wife smoking a cigaret, Robert Johnson, Wednesday night shot and wounded her and a man who attempted to pacify him, then killed himself. The shooting occurred in the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents.

Police said the Johnsons had just reached a reconciliation after a week's separation. Mrs. Johnson was wounded in the jaw, while Bernard May, 45, a boarder at the home who interceded, was shot in the chest.

3 Tornadoes Cause Heavy Damage In Iowa

VESUVIUS BECOMES ACTIVE AS MT. ETNA FLOW IS LESSENNED

Naples—(P)—As the outpouring of molten lava from Mount Etna continued to diminish Thursday, Mount Vesuvius became active.

Incandescent matter was being thrown out from a small orifice at the base of the central cone from which it spouted last August. The eruptive activity was on the northwest side almost under the station of the cable railway running toward the summit.

Lava was pouring from the fissures of the main crater which sent out tongues of flames into the valley of the inferno last August.

The spectacle was interesting to tourists and scientists, but the population of the vicinity was not enthusiastic.

Lifeboat Is Upset; Crew Of 17 Lost

Eyewitness Describes Battle of Plucky Craft Against Furious Sea

Rye, England—(P)—The entire crew of 17 of the Rye lifeboat were thrown into the boisterous channel Thursday when their craft was overturned by heavy seas. It was feared that all were drowned. Eleven bodies had been washed up on the shore.

DESCRIBE TRAGEDY

London—(P)—The Press Association publishes a graphic account of the drowning of all 17 members of the crew of a lifeboat sent out by the Rye, Sussex, station in a tempestuous squall at Jura's gap when the boat overturned while attempting to assist a small steamer in distress Thursday.

An eyewitness was quoted as giving the following description of the tragedy which took place within the sight of relatives when the life-boat was returning to the harbor after the crew of the wrecked steamship Smyrna.

"It was at 7:30 o'clock this morning that a group of people including many women, who had been anxiously waiting, saw the lifeboat returning to the harbor. The seas were mountainous and they were coming in the teeth of a southwesterly gale.
Every fresh wave threatened to overturn the boat and many of the waiting relatives began to pray aloud in terror.

"When the lifeboat was within a half mile of the harbor, the end of the crew's struggle against odds came. A gigantic wave overwhelmed and capsized the little craft and the crew was drowned within sight of the screaming and sobbing men and women waiting at the harbor side.
They could see the men struggling in the angry waves and yet were powerless to do anything. It was some hours later before any bodies began to float ashore at Jura's gap, a desolate spot on the sands several miles from Rye."

MILWAUKEE FIRMS WIN CONTROL OF FULLER CO.

Madison—(P)—Control of the Fuller and Johnson Co., a million dollar ture of light gasoline motors and organized in 1840, has been obtained by the Second Ward Securities Co., both of Milwaukee, according to an announcement

Hoover Plans Series Of Speeches For Trip South

BY JAMES L. WEST
Associated Press Staff Writer
Stanford University, Calif.—(P)— Going to Latin-America as a plenipotentiary of peace and good will, Herbert Hoover will interpret the character of his mission in addresses which he will deliver in each of the republics he will visit on his two months tour.

The president-elect already is outlining some of these speeches, the first of which may be made at Corinto, Nicaragua, now tentatively fixed as the first port of call after the battleship Maryland leaves San Pedro next Monday. He will be welcomed to Corinto by President Diaz.

A speech in this Central American republic would afford an opportunity for the president-elect of the United States to indicate the policy his administration would pursue in dealing with situations such as arose in Nicaragua, which resulted in the landing of marines to police the country.

The use of the marines to supervise the election in Nicaragua has

RUSH TO START OIL DRILLING IN OKLAHOMA

Machinery Clanks in Fields as "Gentlemen's Agreement" Is Ended

Shawnee, Okla.—(P)—The clank and screech of oil drilling machinery Thursday broke the stillness that has hung over the Little river bottoms as drilling, long halted in the Maud and Mission pools of the greater Seminole oil field, was resumed with a rush at the termination of a drastic drilling restriction agreement.

Tools, held in readiness for weeks, bit hurriedly into the earth when the midnight hour of termination arrived, and though it was impossible to tell how many wells were "spudded in," oil men who toured the field, estimated that probably eighty new tests greeted the dawn.

Starting had been placed on a gentleman's agreement basis, and oil operators throughout the two pools were unanimous in declaring that no one intentionally "jumped the gun"; that there were no "sonners" as in the famous settlement run into the Cherokee strip of north central Oklahoma territory in 1893.

AWAIT ZERO HOUR

The scene at midnight, however, was not greatly unlike the zero hour of that run, which saw nearly 5,000 000 acres of fertile prairie populated by upwards of 50,000 homesteaders in less than a day.

No government agents, with menacing pistols and rifles, stood by to stop a preliminary rush, but there was a tremendous bustle of activity as the time deadline approached, and drillers awaited with steaming boilers to begin boring into the earth in a race to find rich caverns of oil.

Scattered over a ten mile "front" that straggles along the Little river bottoms, upwards of a hundred locations had been staked out and officially listed, ready for the scramble for "oil pay," but rich timbers were not available for some machinery was missing on other locations, and there were some drillers who proposed to withhold their activities at this time.

The race was expected to lose momentum within a week for wells cannot be brought in as producers until Feb. 15, thus giving the operation sufficient time to spud in all tests again.

27 DRUNKEN DRIVERS SINCE JAN. 1st

Arthur Roberts, Kaukauna, was fined $50 and costs and recommendation was made that his driver's license be revoked for six months, when found guilty of drunken driving by Judge Theodore Berg in Municipal court
Thursday morning.

Roberts, with John Powers, also of Kaukauna, was apprehended
by Harry Jobelius, Kaukauna motorcyclist officer, after passing Jobe-lius and a companion on the Darby-rd in the town of Buchanan a week ago Wednesday. The officer noticed the car zig-zagging down the road and stopped to let it pass. When a third car approached Roberts forced it into a ditch and then pulled off to the side and stopped.

The Kaukauna officer went back and held Roberts and Powers while Sheriff Otto H. Zuehlke was called.
Powers was fined $10 for being drunk and Roberts held over on the drunken driving charge.

PRESERVE HANDICRAFT OF BADGER LOCKSMITH

Burlington—(P)—The handicraft of "Klingie the Locksmith," who has been dead for many years, will find its way to the Burlington Historical society.

Klingie, his first name is not known, lived in Burlington before the machine age and in his little shop he fashioned locks, keys, and hinges by hand. Recently the Frank Stang store here was razed and it was found that the lock on its door had been made by Klingie. It was decided to preserve the lock in the historical society.

6 Privates Killed When Plane Falls

Airship Breaks 4,000 Feet in Air—Leap to Safety in Parachutes

San Antonio, Texas—(P)—Trapped in the cockpit of an army transport plane when it broke up 4,000 feet in the air, six privates of the army air school at Brooks field here, were hurled to their death Wednesday as the ship crashed into a cotton patch, 10 miles from the field.

Two occupants of the stricken plane, which lost a wing and tail piece, were thrown clear and used their parachutes to descend safely.
The victims, however, fell into the forward part on the cockpit as the ship nose-dived down, and were unable to crawl back to a small rear door through which they might have jumped to safety with para-chutes.

The dead are: Arthur W. Hardesty, 24; Niceforo Villareal, 29; Carl
W. Harris; Harry W. Gaudin, 26;
Deane T. McClusky, 19; and Irvin
Self, 22.

Leutenant Harvey T. Dyer, pilot, and Staff Sergeant Frank J.
Siebenaler, survived the accident.

Cause of the plane's breakup remained undetermined Thursday as an army investigation board, summoned Wednesday by Major S. W.
Fitzgerald, Brooks field commanding officer, continued its inquiry. The accident was the worst air fatality in several years at the training school.

ONE KILLED BY TWISTER; SIX PERSONS HURT

Loss to Run into Many Thousands—Storm Warnings on Great Lakes

Vinton, Ia.—(P)—Tornadoes dropped out of black skies in three separate localities of northeastern Iowa late Wednesday, causing at least one death, injuries to six, and property damage that will run into many thousands of dollars.

Two twisters struck, one sweeping down about five miles south of Vinton, in Benton co., cutting a path 40 rods wide for 11 miles, then bounding, to drop on the farming community called Silver Creek, 20 miles northeast. The other tornado, at about the same hour, struck at Chester, 90 miles northwest of Silver Creek.

When the first twister took its last dive at Silver Creek, it caused the death of Mrs. Alpha Hawkins, 30, crushing the barn in which she was milking. Two farmsteads were completely demolished, and about a score others damaged, much livestock was killed and trees and telephone poles were laid flat. Damage in that vicinity was estimated at $75,000 or more.

FARM HOMES WRECKED

On its earlier journey, the twister had caused injuries to at least four persons and had wrecked ten farmsteads, in addition to damaging many others. Near the start of its course south of here, it turned toward the William Herman home, causing several cuts to Mrs. Herman and her two children. When it broke out they were driven from their haven.

Next the twister destroyed the house and barn on the John Fry farm, where one man was injured.

From that point on to the end of the 11 mile stretch, eight more farm layouts were reported leveled, and many more damaged, with much loss of livestock. Damaged in this ravaged strip may exceed $150,000.

STORM CONTINUES SAUL STE. MARIE, ONT.—(P)—With a 30-mile gale blowing, storm signals for all craft were posted at both the Canadian and American ship canals here, and the prospect was that the high wind would continue Thursday night.

POST WARNING CALUMET, MICH.—(P)—A northwest storm warning was posted at Lake Superior ports Thursday morning as the heels of a 40-mile wind. Strong westerly winds increasing by night with possible a little snow forecast the first storm of the fall season. An unknown freighter is in shelter in Lily pond, at the Port- age lake ship canal.

GALE AT MILWAUKEE MILWAUKEE—(P)—A 46-mile an- hour gale came sweeping out of the southwest over Milwaukee about midnight Wednesday, slowing down shipping and causing considerable damage to windows, signs, chimneys and trees.

Fears for the safety of the S. S.
Pegasus and the S. S. Durston, long overdue at the port of Milwaukee, where dispelled shortly after 11 o'clock when they were sighted by the local coast guard station. Both docked a bit before noon, the former 15, and the latter 12 hours late.

SCHOONER FLIES SIGNAL OF DISTRESS; 8 ABOARD

New York—(P)—The Radio Marine corporation Thursday morning picked up a message from the coast guard vessel Yamacraw saying that the schooner Anna R. Heidritter first reported in distress Tuesday night, was still found distress signals Thursday. The message read:
"M. S. C. G. Yamacraw, 4 m. m.

PLAN FUND PROBE IN TEXAS REGIONS

House Committee to Leave Friday for South to Make Investigation

Washington—(P)—The house campaign funds committee will leave for Texas next Friday to investigate campaign expenditures in the southern part of the state, particularly in the Fifteenth congressional district which has been represented in the house for 20 years by John Garner, a Democratic stalwart.

The committee, in making its decision by unanimous vote, also mentioned the county of Hidalgo, in which it would inquire into campaign activities.

The motion that the committee visit Texas was made by Representative Nelson, Republican, Maine.
By a party vote of 3 to 1, the committee also adopted a resolution to request the house to extend its authority to investigate until March 1, next.

By Chairman Lehigh of New Jersey, Chubb, Illinois and Nelson, all Republicans. Representative Black, Democrat, New York,

cratic member, representative Ragon

BIRKENHEAD DOESN'T LIKE CAL'S ADDRESS

London—(P)—The earl of Birkenhead, who recently resigned as secretary of state for India, believes that in President Coolidge's Arnistice day speech there is "a spirit of patronage and a capacity for giving advice to Europe and to England."

"As far as England is concerned," the earl said at a complimentary dinner tendered him, "I am not sure that we specially require it. We have not asked the United States, as far as I am aware, to do anything for us."

The American entrance into the war he said was not due to any desire to assist the allies. It was solely because American nationals were being murdered by German submarines.

FIRST WOMEN JURY FINDS BOTH MEN IN LAWSUIT ARE WRONG

Milwaukee—(P)—The first all-women jury in Milwaukee-co lived up to the best feminine traditions Wednesday by finding the plaintiff and the defendant, both men, in the wrong.

wanted to recover $5,000 for injuries received in an automobile collision, was found guilty of contributory negligence and Anthony Danicki, defendant, was found guilty of fail-

SENATE TESTIMONY FOR STEWART TRIAL

Judge Overrules Defense Counsel in Admitting It to His Court

Washington—Over the protest of the defense in the perjury trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, Justice Jennings Balley Thursday permitted testimony given by the oil man to the senate public lands committee last April 24 to go before the jury.

With Senator Rye of North Dakota, on the stand government counsel brought up the April meeting, when Stewart had revealed that $500,000 of Continental Trading company bonds had been received by him and turned over to a trustee.
The court inquired whether Stewart had been sworn on that occasion, as he was on Feb. 2 and 3 when it is charged that he perjured himself in denying knowledge of any distribution of bonds by the company.

"No, he was not," said Rye, explaining that it was not the custom to swear senate committee witnesses when they appeared a second time.

The objection of Frank J. Hogan, defense counsel, against admission of the April testimony was overruled by the court. Justice Balley took the position that the April meeting was a continuance of those of February and it was not necessary to swear Stewart a second time.

BOOTH IMPROVES BUT IS STILL IN DANGER

London—(P)—Salvation army headquarters Thursday afternoon said that the condition of their considered, General William Bramwell Booth, was still causing anxiety. The announcement added that he had shown steady improvement since he reached his low point on Tuesday night. He is suffering from neuritis.

Believed Mate Drowned, Finds Him Safe At Dock

New York—(P)—A pretty, auburn-haired woman who last saw her husband floundering in the sea after the steamship Vestris sank found him waiting at the pier where she was launched just before the Ves-tris went down.

Mrs. Slaughter said she fell out of the boat and was aided under the water by the suction from the liner as it sank.

"It seemed as though I was under a long time," she said, "and when I finally bobbed up I saw my husband paddling a few yards away. Both of us were nearly exhausted."

Near them approached another lifeboat in which was second officer Leslie Watson, of the Vestris. When he saw them she said he jumped into the sea and swam towards her.
The lifeboat kept pulling away.
She said it was probably twenty minutes before Watson reached her side and that he supported her in the water for perhaps an hour.
Her husband came up his place in the lifeboat assigned to them and helped her into it.

HOLD HEARING TO FIX BLAME FOR TRAGEDY

Federal Authorities Proceed Despite Question of Jurisdiction

WITNESSES ARE CALLED

Britain May Abide by Decision if It Is Unbiased and Exhaustive

BULLETIN

Washington—(P)—A congressional investigation of the sinking of the Vestris is favored by Senator Fletcher, Democrat of Florida, the ranking member of his party on the committee.

BULLETIN

London—(P)—Board of trade officials said late Thursday that a searching investigation into the loss of the steamer Vestris was needed.
They had not, however, decided the form of the inquiry or where it should be held. Earlier the board had pointed out that such an inquiry was not obligatory.

New York—(P)—Setting aside questions as to jurisdiction, the federal authorities here began a thorough investigation Thursday into the sinking of the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris with the loss of more than 100 lives.

After preliminary questioning of witnesses Thursday morning by Assistant United States Attorneys George J. Minzer and Edward S.
Silver, the former inquiry was scheduled to open before United States commissioner Francis A. O'Neill Thursday afternoon. Between fifty and sixty witnesses had been subpoenaed for the hearing.

Although the Vestris was of British registry and the jurisdiction of the American authorities was uncertain, it was indicated Thursday that the British authorities might consent to have the entire inquiry conducted here. Mr. Minzer said he had heard, unofficially, that the British Board of Trade had cabled the consul general here stating that if the inquiry was unbiased and exhaustive the board would abide by it.

WORK QUICKLY

United States Attorney Charles
H. Tuttle, in ordering the investigation, said it was for the purpose of "recording and perpetuating" the testimony of the rescued passengers and crew while the facts were still fresh in their minds.

E. George Williams, passenger traffic manager of the Lamport and Holt line, also began an examination of the surviving officers and men of the crew.

A. Pugh, the purser of the Ves-tris, who was rescued by the American Shipper, was the first man questioned. He declined to comment upon the nature of the questioning, or to answer charges leveled at the crew by passengers.

Charges made by surviving passengers of the Vestris, which are being investigated by the federal authorities, include:
Delay in abandoning the sinking ship.
Failure to ask aid in time.
Failure to warn passengers and crew of danger.
Defective life boat equipment.
Flares in life boat said to be wet. Lantern in one boat, but no oil. One boat broken to pieces when it capsized. One boat leaking.
Failure to close bulkheads tightly before liner sailed. Also charged bulkheads were weak.
Mishandling of life boats, allowing some to dangle in midair until passengers were spilled or ship sank.
Misconduct by some members of crew in failing to assist persons struggling in water.

CAUSE IN DOUBT

The cause of the sudden disaster to the supposedly seaworthy vessel remained in doubt.

Several theories were advanced by survivors. One was that the cargo hatches were not securely fastened, another that the bow was stove in by a momentary wave, and another that a coal hole was left open due to rusted hinges.

David Cook, vice president of Sanderson and Sons, Inc., agents for the owners, the Lamport and Holt line, issued a statement expressing the belief that the cargo of crates and automobiles in the hold had shifted, breaking open a bulkhead and starting a leak which permitted the seas to rush in.

DEMOCRATS TO BE UNITED IN U. S. CONGRESS

Party Likely to Show

AL'S PLEA SIGNIFICANT

If Party Disintegrates Split
Among Republican Fac-
tions Is Forecast

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1928, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—Instead of a crushed and disintegrated Democracy which might lead to the break-up of the two-party system in America, there is a likelihood of a stronger and more powerful minority during the Hoover administration acting as a check on the majority party.

The speech of Governor Smith was significant of what the leaders of the Democratic party hope to do but it was even more important as a preventive against possible breakup of the majority party.

Immediately after the election there was so much resentment talk on the part of the Democrats, who in despair felt that they could accomplish no more inside the Democratic party, that the possibility of their voting with the Republican party hereafter came to the surface. The experience in politics in the west has revealed that when a group in the electorate fails to attain its objective in one party it goes into the other.

If millions of voters who support the Democratic nominee should shift so that the Republican party embraced three-fourths of the voting population, the next step would be the development of an eastern and western Republicanism or a conservative and progressive cleavage. The latter realignment has been predicted for a long time and may yet come about but if the Republican party is to be broken up by it, the people responsible for it will be those who forsake the Democratic party.

MAY PREVENT CLEAVAGE

Governor Smith's outspokenly referred to the Democratic party as the liberal party, the party of progressives. If the leaders can make of the minority party the organization of progressives and liberals,

Laabs Wants Register Of Deeds To Be On Salary Basis

URGES BOARD TO LOOK INTO FEE SYSTEM

Grand Chute Supervisor Says Register's Income Is Large

Charging that he believed fees now charged by the register of deeds were excessive and higher than the law allows, Supervisor August Laabs, town of Grand Chute, introduced a resolution at Thursday morning's session of the county board calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the feasibility of placing that office on a salary basis.

Under the rule Mr. Laabs' resolution was automatically laid over until Friday and there was no discussion on the matter other than Mr. Laabs' explanation of reasons for his action.

"People of Appleton and Outagamie are complaining that the rates paid for recordings in the register of deeds' office are too high," Mr. Laabs charged. "At least it is my own opinion, after studying the law, that rates now charged are higher than the law contemplates."

COULD SAVE MONEY
Mr. Laabs explained that his personal experiences with the register of deeds office led him to believe that the county would save money by placing the register on a salary basis instead of one a fee basis, the system under which that office now operates. He said that from $5 to 40 cents too much was being charged for the recording of every deed and he said he believed that the receipts being earned by the register were from $3,000 to $4,000 a year higher than they should be.

"The register of deeds in Brown and Winnebago counties is on a salary basis and the committee which I am suggesting should be appointed could go to those counties to study the good effects of the change," Mr. Laabs said. He pointed out that even if the county board adopts a resolution at this session to change the salary basis of the register's office, the change would not go into effect until after the November election in 1924.

Eleven petitions for county aid on county trunk highways were presented to the county board and referred to the highway committee for investigation. The petitions follow: town of Boylston, $20,000; town of Black Creek, $2,000; village of Combined Locks, $2,000; town of Center, $1,200; town of Maine, $1,000; town of Oneida, $2,000; town of Freedom, $1,500; town of Buchanan, $500; town of Grand Chute, $4,000; town of Hortonville, $2,000; village of Little Chute, $10,000; city of Kaukauna, undetermined aid for completing paving of gaps on county trunks J and Z in the city.

A petition from the Appleton city council to appear before the county board to make an appeal for county aid on the paving of Wisconsin street at the end of this year. Among the officers to be filed are highway commissioners, highway committee, county health officer, and trustees for the county sanatorium and asylum.

FIREMEN USE MASKS TO BATTLE SULPHUR FIRE

Firemen used gas masks to fight a fire in a sulphur bin at the Interlake Pulp and Paper company about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A falling piece of steel struck the concrete floor and a spark set fire to the sulphur. Fumes from the burning material handicapped the firemen but after an hour the blaze was put out.

The department also was called about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to the home of George Carrigan, 1023 E. Vine-st., when an oil stove exploded. The fire was put out in a few minutes.

MORE PROSPERITY SEEN FOR SOUTH

Hoover Regards Large Vote as Triumph for Party, Not Personal Tribute

Baltimore, (AP)—Herbert Hoover regards the large number of votes cast for him in the south as a victory for his party rather than as a personal tribute.

Writing to R. H. Edmunds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, Mr. Hoover said that with one-third of the nation's land area, with about three-fifths of its sea frontage, with vast resources in soil, climate and minerals, no limit can be set upon the continued progress and ever increasing prosperity of the whole south. His letter was in response to a request for his view of this section.

The president-elect declared that he was "profoundly appreciative of the extremely heavy vote cast throughout the south" for himself and vice president-elect Curtis. "I accept this vote," he said, "not as a personal tribute, but as an expression of a developing sentiment throughout the south on behalf of the things for which the Republican party has stood in this campaign." He added that it was his firm belief that the time had come when voters throughout the country should cast their ballots on their convictions as to conditions and not make "things of a former generation" the basis of their vote.

Giving assurance that his administration would "know no difference between north, south, east and west," but "seek to deal with absolute fairness to every section of our common country," Mr. Hoover pledged his cooperation in the development of flood control projects, an interoceanic canal system and hydroelectric power. The canal system, he said, should be constructed entirely from Boston to "the end of Texas."

ASKS COMPENSATION FOR FINGER INJURY

Industrial Commissioner Takes Testimony in Workmen's Cases

Compensation for an injury to his fingers when they were cut by an unguarded rip saw while he was employed by August Schwabenberg, Chilton, was asked by Louis Schwabenberg Potter at a hearing before How and Ohm, industrial commissioners, at the courthouse Thursday morning. The accident occurred on Aug. 9, 1923, and the defendant asked for aid under the Workmen's Compensation act.

The case was one of four scheduled for hearing before Commissioner Ohm Thursday morning, the second day of a three-day session which opened Wednesday. Testimony also was taken in the case of Fred Rosenthal, New London, against the Hatten Lumber company. Rosenthal asked compensation for a crushed thumb which he claimed he sustained when the member was caught in a roller while he was employed by the company.

The commissioner also listened to testimony in the case of Wilford Courtis, 1403 N. Division-st., versus the Foster Wheeler corporation. Courtis was working for the company at Kimberly and he claims a brick fell on his head from a scaffold beneath which he was employed. He asks for compensation for injuries. The case of Edward Gastrock, deceased, versus Riverdale Fibre and Paper company, was settled.

More hearings are to be conducted Thursday afternoon, Friday morning and Friday afternoon when the session will end.

WINS VERDICT FOR $1,750 BUT CAN'T COLLECT DAMAGES

Jury Finds Plaintiff Did Not Exercise Ordinary Care at Task

Although a jury in circuit court Wednesday afternoon awarded him $1,750 damages for loss of part of his left arm, Arthur Eastman, 19 Northport, cannot collect because the jury also found he did not exercise ordinary care while working on the silo filler which caused the injury. Eastman was suing Nick E. Wiesler, Greenville farmer, his former employer, for $8,000 damages, charging the employer was negligent in not informing Eastman of the chance for injury while cleaning out the fan box of the silo filler.

The jury in its special verdict found the defendant, Wiesler, should have warned Eastman of the danger in opening the door to the fan box, that the defendant's omission caused the injury, that the defendant was guilty of negligence in not shutting off the power, and also found that the plaintiff need not have known in the exercise of ordinary care that there was danger of his hand being drawn into the fan box if he tried to close the door while the power was on.

The jurors then answered "yes" to the question "Did the want of ordinary care on the plaintiff's part contribute to produce his injury and set the damage award at $1,750. In view of the contradictory findings in the case no award will be made."

GRADING SYSTEM IS INEXACT, SAYS U. W. PROFESSOR

Prof. F. D. Cheydleur Gives Address to Minnesota Education Group

Minneapolis—(AP)—The present educational grading system is inexact and a study of Humanities in the university gives a more rounded out culture than the utilitarian courses, according to Prof. Frederic D. Cheydleur of the department of romance language at the University of Wisconsin, who addressed two sections of the Minnesota Educational Association here last week.

In discussing the grading system, Prof. Cheydleur told of investigations which 1,700 Spanish and French students at the University of Wisconsin in which the grading and test systems were studied.

"The grading system," the speaker said, "tends to be inexact and unfair to the dull or lazy student and teacher as well as to the bright or industrious student or instructor."

"According to President Glenn Frank of the University, research in modern psychology and biology has unearthed new knowledge in regard to nature and the needs of men. He claims that our universities have unfortunately tended to impose this new knowledge in their departments of psychology and biology, to teach it with great care, but not to let it loose as the reorganizing force it might be."

Prof. Cheydleur then explained that at Wisconsin, the department of Humanities, which was given before the Latin section of the association, he defended the courses. Broad culture offers a solution of many problems, for Prof. Cheydleur said:

"The world is full of problems crying for solution and there never was a time when men of broad training, sound judgment, high ideals and wide sympathies were in great demand, nor was there ever a time when men of this stamp had a wide opportunity for providing their worth to society."

Famous Recipe
For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germs and phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SUPPORT THE BAND

Few of the thousands of persons who enjoyed the concerts played by the 120th Field Artillery band in the city's parks and in Lawrence Memorial chapel last summer and winter have even the faintest conception of the difficulties of financing that splendid organization year after year. They know the concerts are free and that they are highly enjoyable and give no further thought to it.

But a real problem is involved in paying the salaries of the 45 or 50 bandmen, engaging a director, paying rent and buying music and supplies. The band men cannot be expected to give their time without compensation, soloists, like other entertainers, expect to be paid for their services and publishing houses demand pay for their music. Operating a band is a business proposition that requires money.

The tremendous crowds at band concerts during the summer and winter attest to the popularity of the organization. It is considered one of Appleton's most valuable assets, not only because of the splendid entertainment which it affords our people but also because it is a source of worthwhile advertising for our city.

A budget prepared by the Citizens Finance committee, which has charge of the business affairs of the band, estimates the expense of operation for the ensuing year at $9,354.60, including the salary of the director, salaries of band members for 20 public concerts, expenses and compensation for soloists, purchase of music and other items connected with administration of an organization of this kind.

The common council of the city of Appleton, which has shown a most commendable appreciation of the band, will be asked to include the sum of $8,600 for band support in its budget this year, an increase of $2,600 over last year's appropriation of $6,000.

The city is not asked to pay all the expenses of the band. The difference between the $8,600 asked from the council and the $9,354 actually required will be obtained from other sources, but inasmuch as the city reaps by far the largest benefit from the band it should expect to pay the major portion.

This request for an enlarged appropriation is thoroughly justified on the record of the band. It is doubtful if any activity in which the city is engaged gives the taxpayers as much for their money as this organization. Its concerts are attended by thousands and thousands of people and its popularity is growing with every year.

Taxpayers of Appleton not only want to keep their band but they want to see it grow. They recognize in it an asset that many other cities are willing to support liberally. Appleton is a music loving city and if the people as a whole were permitted to express themselves on whether the band should be given the additional appropriation we venture the prediction that the support would be well nigh unanimous. The slight increase in the appropriation is such an infinitesimal part of the city's total budget that even the largest taxpayer in Appleton will scarcely notice it.

We fully realize that the common council has many places to spend the city's money and that it is faced with many difficulties to make receipts cover expenses, but we feel that the vast majority of Appleton's taxpayers want the band supported and there will be a general expression of satisfaction if the Citizens Finance committee's request for $8,600 is granted.

A NEEDLESS SEA HORROR

A combination of heroism and tragedy has been again enacted on the sea. The loss of the Steamer Vestris, with upwards of 200 persons saved, after perilous exposure in life boats, rafts and open water, with the probability that more than 100 lives have been lost, invites the close scrutiny given only periodically to the seaworthiness of vessels and to their life saving facilities. Stories are out that some of the life boats of the Vestris had holes in them, lacked rudders and were otherwise non-servicable.

There was also an inexplicable delay in sending out S O S signals. Every life might have been saved. The handling of the ship from the time she left New York, if stories of survivors are to be believed, was incompetent and passes understanding. Port inspection of the vessel seems to have been superficial. The whole tragedy is so involved in scandalous circumstances as to look more like a case of manslaughter than of accident.

Finally, it appears there has been gross negligence on the part of the company owning and operating this steamship. Not only is every trans-Atlantic liner engaged in the carrying of passengers required to provide ample life boat, raft and belt facilities, but they are supposed to be kept in perfect condition. The larger and more responsible companies we believe take these requirements literally and observe them faithfully. They have been through too many great and costly casualties in the past not to be on their guard, and these precautions are plainly visible to the ocean traveler. However, the smaller companies are apt to be less careful.

There have been several ocean disasters lately which indicated that ships were being operated that had no business to be in service, at least without a complete overhauling and tests of their motive power as well as their seaworthiness. The loss of the Vestris calls for a searching investigation, an investigation which could well be extended to include passenger carrying steamships generally.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S FAREWELL

Gov. Smith's "farewell" address to the American people was a well considered political utterance. It should have a calming and soothing effect on the hostilities of the campaign, often carried over for a considerable time to the detriment of public affairs. Gov. Smith offered highly valuable advice to the Democrats that in the future they be not content with a policy of opposition, but that they proceed to formulate positive policies of their own on which they can go to the country in the future if they are rejected.

One of the great weaknesses in the Democrat party for many years has been its lack of constructive policies. It has been too much a party of negation. Its espousal of free silver was one of its few and disastrous attempts at something different from the Republicans. Gov. Smith's appeal to his party to abstain from partisan obstruction of legislative measures in the new government is one which benefits a recent candidate for the presidency, but it is a question how far the Democratic politicians will go in giving ear to it.

While Gov. Smith's epilogue was a graceful appreciation of the honor conferred upon him by his nomination and the confidence manifested in him by nearly 15,000,000 voters, betraying no bitterness although admittedly disappointment, the chief import of his address is the attempt to re-vitalize the Democratic party. Into a discouraging outlook he has injected what hopefulness he could. Resurrection of the party sounded plausible enough over the radio, but the magnitude of the undertaking is greater than the governor's optimism would indicate. Just what concrete policies it is to adopt as the foundation of a successful future are not apparent. It is all right to talk about a return to Jeffersonian democracy and the principles of the founders of the Democratic party, but we fear they are less involved in government today than the Democrats like to imagine. In fact Democrats are more inclined to go off on tangents leading away from the fundamentals of the American system of government than are the Republicans.

If the Democrats wish to become liberal to the extent of advocating government ownership and operation of commercial business and interstate public service, that might create an issue. There is no longer an issue over farm relief, tariff or anything else that we can see for the immediate future. The doctrine of state rights can, of course, be applied to a solution of the prohibition problem, but that too is a long ways off. Possibly Gov. Smith had more of this in his mind than of other concrete ideas.

ON THE DOT

The big business man had died and gone to—well, not to heaven. But hardly had he settled down for a nice long smoke when a hearty hand slapped him on the back and into his ear boomed the voice of a persistent salesman who had pestered him much on earth.

"Well, Mr. Dinwoolly," chortled the P. S., "I'm right here for the appointment."

"What appointment?" growled Mr. Dinwoolly.

"Why, don't you remember?" the P. S. went on. "Every time I came into your office you told me you'd see me in hell." —College Humor.

"Weight, indeed," snapped the stout woman. "If they did it would hardly be worth while stopping to pick up a featherweight like you."

FOOD AND ACIDOSIS

In McCollum & Simmonds's excellent little book on "Food, Nutrition and Health," may be found two tables of foods listed according to their acid forming or base forming character. Every food substance that is oxidized or utilized in the body leaves one or another by-product, "acid" or waste which must be disposed of through one or another excreting or eliminating channel—kidneys, lungs, or intestine. Some foods give an alkaline or base, some give an acid, and some give a neutral ash.

McCollum & Simmonds list, first, the neutral foods, as follows: Butter, starch, cream, tapioca, sugar, glucose, lard, the fats of beef and mutton, and fish and game and fowl.

Then the acid forming foods, as follows: Oysters, egg yolk, chicken, fish, veal, pork, lean beef, eggs, white bread, wheat, oatmeal, graham bread, corn bread, rice, peanuts.

Finally the alkali or base forming foods: Tomatoes, raisins, dried beans, prunes, carrots, beets, potatoes, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce, oranges, lemons, peaches, turnips, radishes, apples, asparagus, almonds, bananas, dried peas, milk, lettuce, dried currants.

Of these foods, according to McCollum and Simmonds, oysters, egg yolk, chicken, fish and white bread yield the greater amount of acid ash; and tomatoes, raisins and beans the greatest amount of alkaline ash.

There are probably still a few persons who imagine the citrus fruits make the "system," that is, the blood or tissues, acid. On the contrary, the citric acid of grapefruit, lemons, oranges, limes or tangerines is oxidized into carbon dioxide and this combines with alkalis in the blood to form alkaline carbonates.

So that these foods are particularly valuable when one desires to increase alkalinity in the blood or reduce acidity in the urine. Malic acid, in apples, peaches and other fruits, as well as in tomatoes, is likewise converted into alkaline material.

Probably a liberal use of tomatoes in the diet is the best possible way to oppose acidosis.

Acidosis, we must remember, refers to the reaction of the blood and tissues, not to the degree of acidity in the stomach. McCollum & Simmonds say something about excessive stomach acidity in some cases of acidosis, but they are not qualified to consider that and I think they are wrong in assuming any relation of the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice to pathological acidosis. At any rate, nobody should refrain from eating tomatoes or other acid fruits, valuing any false conception of their acidity.

As for that, I have given these tables of acid forming and alkali forming foods with reluctance, for I doubt whether it is wise for anyone to prefer or reject any of these foods merely because it is or is not acid forming. In very few instances indeed, is such a restriction diet practically effective, even in real sickness. I hope the lists as given here will tend to reassure some readers, and not induce anyone to become finical about his victuals.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swas

New York—Manhattan provides an endless parade of "minor immortals."

They're those people whose names one cannot remember, yet who, in 1893 won the world's pie eating contest; or the dance marathon of 1928; or the loud-speaking contest of 1884; or the fellow who baked the world's largest cake.

These are the boys and girls who once brought about a percentage of the arguments that went on around the old stove in the country stores and who, for all I know, may be the basis of discussion around the drug store counters at this moment. Someone, you will recall, was always ready to "bet a quarter" that so-and-so did such-and-such on some-date-or-other. Whereupon there was a hasty searching of the World Almanac and other volumes given or to statistical records.

Such heroes, of course, are made of overnight ingredients. Their fame flashes for a few hours and is gone in the morning. Yet somewhere, somehow their achievement is recorded and rises to haunt some future challenger.

During those moments when the achievement is at hand, the movie cameras grind and the still cameras click; the reporters are out en masse and the committees sit importantly by.

The competitive spirit in such contests is greater, of course, in the smaller communities than in Manhattan, though the number of contests in New York if placed end to end would provide those Roman holiday seekers with a hundred years of steady entertainment.

At the country fairs, unless times have changed, the pie eaters still go to it tooth and jowl; the hog callers send their shrieks upon the still air and the gent who grew the largest pumpkin is a minor celebrity.

Gathering a few notes on such matters over a period of a few weeks, I have discovered that a young man in Minnesota was able to stow away 65 cups of coffee at a sitting, and live through it; that a famous "human fly" was able to perch on a flagpole for something like eight hours; that a patriotic gentleman in New Bedford, Mass., gave "The Star-Spangled Banner" for more than 17 days without stopping, which must place him in the unique position of an American who actually knows the words of the national anthem. Some 45 hot-cakes went into the gullet of a future dyspeptic. A couple of young men stayed under water in a Chicago tank until the police interfered, and thus spared the under-taker a job. Any number of flyers have stayed in trees until records were achieved or the law of gravity interfered to cause tragedy. Dance marathon records are as fragile as potato chips. A gent in upper New York thumped the piano keys for 32 hours and was not shot by his neighbors. A couple of stilt walkers walked from Boston to Providence without getting down.

But why go on? They all live to tell the tale and re-tell it. Just what good it will do them I don't pretend to know. They're all at liberty insofar as I know, and no keepers from the "bug house" have to my knowledge, come to get them.

I assume that, behind such performances, lies some deep psychological motivation, and I'm not up to the latest wrinkles in psychology.

WASHINGTON NOW SPECULATES ON HOOVER CABINET

Country Also Wonders About Effect Landslide Will Have on Democrats

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—The nation now looks forward to the four years following March 4. For those four years, at least, Herbert Hoover will guide its destinies—Herbert Hoover the engineer, the director of relief and the man who has promised to maintain prosperity for those who have it and to introduce it to those who have it not.

As every American analyzes for himself the results of the election, three important questions arise, but they must remain in the realm of speculation until they are answered by developments which cannot now be foretold.

1.—Will Herbert Hoover's administration represent merely four more years of Republicanism or will the Harding-Coolidge stamp or will he provide a new type of rule, a period of aggressive, intelligent conservatism?

2.—What will be the effect on the "noble experiment" known as prohibition?

3.—What will become of the Democratic party and of Al Smith? Some indication of the "correct" answer to the first question may be provided when Hoover picks his cabinet. At the moment, however, there is nothing to indicate that the Hoover cabinet will be composed of men of personal distinction in great excess of the present ministry. In view of the makeup of the Coolidge cabinet, an improvement in caliber is virtually certain.

Two men have been mentioned as possible successors to Secretary of State Kellogg—Senator Borah and Ambassador Dwight Morrow. Either would fill the office ably, but it is quite likely that some other man will fill this post.

Borah appreciates the prestige as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and it is not at all certain that he would accept the cabinet job while he had the opportunity to represent the administration in the Senate. Morrow, on the other hand, is a close friend of Calvin Coolidge rather than a close friend of Hoover. It is so easy for Hoover to pass Morrow over that it is more than likely he will.

MELLON MAY REMAIN

Other cabinet gossip is to the effect that Secretary Mellon wants to remain as head of the treasury Department and that Hoover will let him stay. Assistant Attorney General "Wild Bill" Donovan apparently is slated for the job of attorney general. One of the more important campaign managers, most likely James W. Good, will be given the postmaster-generalship, which controls patronage.

But during and after the cabinet decisions Hoover will be best by his supporters for recognition, conservatives on one side and progressives on the other.

The extent of prohibition enforcement in the next four years will depend on Hoover's own decision. If Hoover seeks to enforce prohibition laws to the limit of his ability, those laws will certainly be more respected than they have been in recent years. Whether or not, enforcement is possible, Hoover has the opportunity to try it. The failure or success of an honest effort might determine the fate of prohibition in the country.

FUTURE OF DEMOCRATS

For the Democratic party, its destruction has so often been predicted and its demise so often proclaimed that any definite assertions concerning its future would be absurd at this moment. The party has always insisted on working its way out and whether it works out its destruction or salvation it will now again decide for itself.

The decisiveness of Smith's defeat has done much to discourage a Smith candidacy for 1932. It must be remembered, however, that the Democratic National Committee is in the hands of Smith's friends and that they are not very much concerned with the political fortunes of anyone else. We may see Al a candidate again in 1932, by reason of his brave campaign this year and one else will rise to lead the party.

Wisconsin Lady Was Right

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children! That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily, they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Wisconsin mother, Mrs. W. J. Gruber, 893 Thirty-fourth St., Milwaukee, says: "My daughter, Dorothy, began having constipation. Mother got me to give her California Fig Syrup and in a few days she was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all her colds or little colicky spells. It always stops her trouble quick, strengthens her, makes her eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BEAUTY HINTS

THE NEW Saint Sinner

Crystal hesitated, then seemed to make up her mind to trust Tony completely. Oh, if she had only worked out the details better, before exposing her pitiful little fraud to Tony's candid, delighted blue eyes. "I'm to meet him Sunday—tomorrow—at our secret trysting place. If I can escape questioning from Bob and Faith. No one knows a word about all this but you, Tony, and if you ever dare to breathe—"

"O-o-h!" Tony shivered with a thrill of pure pleasure. "A secret trysting place and everything! Gorgeous! You lucky girl! And here I've been wasting time being sorry for you in the hot city all summer!"

But what's his name, Crystal? It's Smith, Tony. Brown or Schultz, I'll simply die!"

Crystal laughed nervously, hesitated again, then plunged recklessly. "His name is Paul Valencio! Of course he was christened Pablo. I told you he was high-born Mexican or Spanish or something like that. He's awfully mysterious about his past."

"Pablo Valencio!" Tony breathed. "Perfect! Well! I suppose you call him Pablo. I would. And what does he call you? Tell me everything lovely he says to you!"

Crystal had dreamed enough about her "ideal" to be able to obey with fluent ease. "He calls me 'Diamond,' because, he says, Crystal is not good enough for me. Of course you know how silly men in love are."

"But doesn't he say a word about getting married? Maybe he can't, because he's a struggling artist and hasn't money enough to support a wife. Gosh! A woe like that could make a fortune on the screen. . . . But of course you wouldn't want to suggest anything so materialistic to a girl like Pablo!"

"Maybe that is why he hasn't actually proposed," Crystal said, letting her eyes grow somber. "Maybe that is why his painting smocks are so thin and frayed. I've simply asked to mend them for him, but a note of domesticity in an affair of this sort—one of dream-like ecstasy."

"Yes, it would be a farthing note!" Tony laughed. "But I'll bet he eats and uses toothpaste and swears over lost collar buttons just like other men. . . . Has he given any concrete evidences of his devotion?" she thought to demand practically. "Of course if he's too poor—"

"Oh, but he hasn't!" Crystal assured her quickly. "Loads of flowers, my dear, and little pictures he has painted. She caught herself up sharply. That was getting into too deep waters. Tony would demand to see them. "Of course, they are mere sketches, and has made me swear not to show them to a single human being. He says they are for my eyes and mine alone. But some day, they may be worth thousands," she concluded proudly. "Not that I would ever sell them. . . . Oh, I—I—"

And, to Tony's amazement, Crystal burst into a torrent of tears, her sobs racking her body with frightening intensity.

"Don't do love him, don't you?" Tony asked, in a slow, amazed voice. "I didn't realize how deadly serious it is for you, darling. . . . Listen, Crystal! I'm him down to a regular, breach-of-promise sort of proposal tomorrow. You've simply got to have this romantic Pablo if you want him. . . . And while you're with Pablo, I'll be with my good old Sandy! . . . Lord, what a contrast!" she grinned, but she knew that she would not have exchanged places with Crystal.

NEXT: Tony reports to Sandy.

AFGHAN GIRLS WILL STUDY IN CHRISTIAN LAND

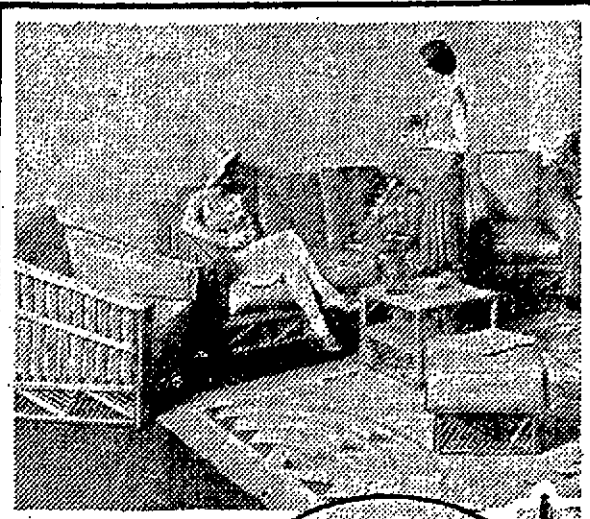

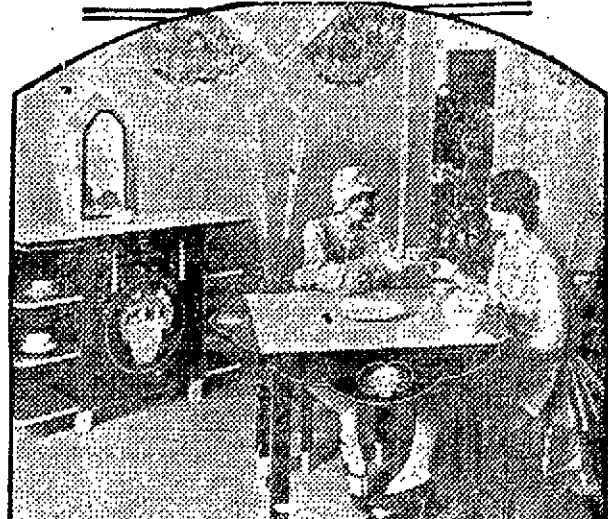

Kabul, Afghanistan—(P)—For the first time in history a group of Mohammedan maidens of Afghanistan are going to be sent abroad to study in Christian lands. King Amanullah, who has thrown aside many traditions since his European tour, is sending the girls abroad. He told the "Durbar," the new legislative assembly, that they would go to various schools in different countries.

Modernism Comes to Stay in Home

Chicago—Old Thomas Chippendale, maestro of the English cabinet makers two centuries ago, would get an eyeful if he came to Chicago these days.

But if old Tom caught a glimpse of the "art moderne" furniture, which a majority of the present day craftsmen are producing, he probably would have a more definite opinion than most of today's experts. For they don't know just what to think about it.

Furniture manufacturers—764 of them—are bringing out their new lines for the fall furniture style show at the American Furniture Mart here, where 70 per cent of the furniture of the nation is sold at wholesale, being viewed by retail dealers of the nation.

"Art moderne" with sharp angles and brilliant splashes of color as its outstanding characteristics, has come to stay, most leaders of the industry believe. They say that it will typify the 20th century as Chippendale stands for the 18th century, and Duncan Phyfe for the century just past.

MODIFICATIONS NECESSARY That modifications will be necessary, however, before the new style is generally accepted, is the general belief. The new designs are available in beautiful expensive pieces—ivory, ebony, imported zebra wood and satinwood, and in fibre or reed furniture. Other designs have been created from woods which will have a popular price appeal—gunwood, sapwood, poplar and walnut veneers. The new mode in furniture is based on some of the same principles which the impressionist painters use in their canvases. The style was evolved at an international exhibition in Paris in 1925. At this exhibition, it was required that all pieces shown be entirely new creations, containing no elements ever used before.

Some beautiful furniture, and some monstrous, inartistic nonsense was produced. America's leading designers have taken the best of the new style and subjected it to the supreme test of good furniture: Is it comfortable? Then they have adapted it so that it bids fair to become the craze in the finest homes.

Those who favor the new style say that it has beauty and comfort that old furniture does not; that it has no dust catchers as motifs. They add that French furniture was made for ornamentation, British furniture for durability, and that America's newest designs combine these two essentials with comfort. Those who are opposed to say it is that it is grotesque and freaky, that many of the pieces lack artistic surroundings before the decade is over.

Three Contributions To Womens' Success

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

NEA Service Writer

New York—Health, married happiness and one's attitude toward work seem to be three paramount problems before successful business women, judging from opinions of outstanding women in the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

From Reno, Nev., naturally came a plea for more consideration in marriage, that divorces may be fewer. Miss Police Cohn, attorney, only woman U. S. Referee in Bankruptcy, spoke about marriage from a close-up of hundreds of divorce cases she has handled in Reno.

"It is only a step," she asserted, "from the disillusionment and discords of the divorce court to the happy, successful marriage."

GROWS FROM MISUNDERSTANDING

"Discord with its eventual divorce, is predicated on lack of common understanding, selfishness and a growing demand for pleasure money. There seems a woeful lack of desire to safe for any permanent thing, such as a home."

"Women who work seem to understand that compatibility, usefulness and humor are three first principles of happy marriages."

"With these basic qualities, love will be the welding force to hold a couple together. I think children are needed too, for the really happy marriage."

Dr. Bertha M. Maxwell, from Williamsport, Pa., thinks health should be the first consideration of all working women. Other problems must be solved in turn. But, given health, everything else is easier. So she said:

Good health should be the first law of success. If you have it, keep it; if you do not have it, gain it and hold it.

"A proper diet, intelligently balanced, is the biggest single factor in the maintenance of health of any business or professional woman who aims at continued success."

"One's choice of food is a gauge of her intelligence. Too often the enjoyment of food is given preference over the mental satisfaction which comes from having eaten wisely instead of too well."

"An overfed animal produces dollars for pounds. The overfed human produces slow brain and inaction."

"Cram the stomach and the digestive organs call a halt on other functions of the body while they consume too large a share of the body's energy to take care of excess food."

NECESSARY TO SUCCESS

"Clear thinking and a vital personality are necessary factors in building success. You can have neither with a clogged brain."

From California still another problem was raised that is considered most important to women who would succeed. Frances Effinger Raymond, prominent Pacific Coast business woman, said women still need adjusting psychologically to their jobs, first and foremost, before they can approach success. She feels that too many women still get and hold their jobs because they are women, instead of efficient human beings.

"The World Physiological Conference reported that men fail because they are emotionalists," she stated. "We business women know that in crises emotion disrupts thinking, blurs issues and blinds progress."

NEED MORE FIGHTING SPIRIT

"What are we doing about it? Are we watching the danger signals and avoiding the left turns to emotional excess?"

"Genuine emotion that carries the thrill and fire of endeavor; emotion that is subtle, searching and honest is the very heart beat of success."

"But for the love of business, sex-appealing women should cut out the hurt feelings, the dewey eyes, trembling lips, and 'please, I'm just a woman' stuff. Women must learn to take their punishment, their corrections, with a fighter's, not a sister's spirit."

COLLEGE WOMEN TO RAISE FUND

New York—(P)—Thirty thousand women belonging to the American Association of University Women are attempting to raise one million dollars to encourage post graduate and research work among college women.

Prof. Emma H. Gunther of Columbia university has been appointed field secretary of the fellowship fund. She has begun a tour of the United States in its interest.

Miss Gunther was American delegate to the International Federation of University Women in Madrid, Spain, in September, where the subject of more fellowships for women the world over was discussed. She was also exchange professor under the Carnegie Foundation to China.

A number of the fellowships will enable university women to have a period of graduate study in some country other than their own and a number will be in the form of prizes awarded for research in special subjects.

WELLESLEY GIRLS CATCHING FROGS

Wellesley, Mass.—(P)—Frog catching is one of the minor sports at Wellesley College—at least as a by-product of a course in zoology.

The college forester claims it is really an excellent sport, although he is called upon to assist the girls in their frog-catching efforts. The frogs are scooped mostly from Botany Pond on the campus with the aid of a large net and are lugged off to the classroom in jars by the girl students.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

"Hi, we are quite a happy four," sang Scouty, "Cause we're free once more. We're sailing on the ocean blue, and having lots of fun. We've left the big boat far behind, because the captain wasn't kind."

Then Coppy broke right in and said, "Oh, think what we have done."

"I do not like to make a fuss, but what will children think of us for sneaking off with this small boat? It isn't ours, you know. I'm almost sorry that we left, 'cause we can be accused of theft. I think back to the great big ship is where we ought to go."

"Oh, no!" cried Scouty. "You are wrong! We leave all things where they belong, except when we have paid for them. So there's no need to fret. Today our captain friend will find that I left several bills behind. I paid more for this little boat than he'd expect to get."

"Hurrah! Hurrah!" one Tiny said.

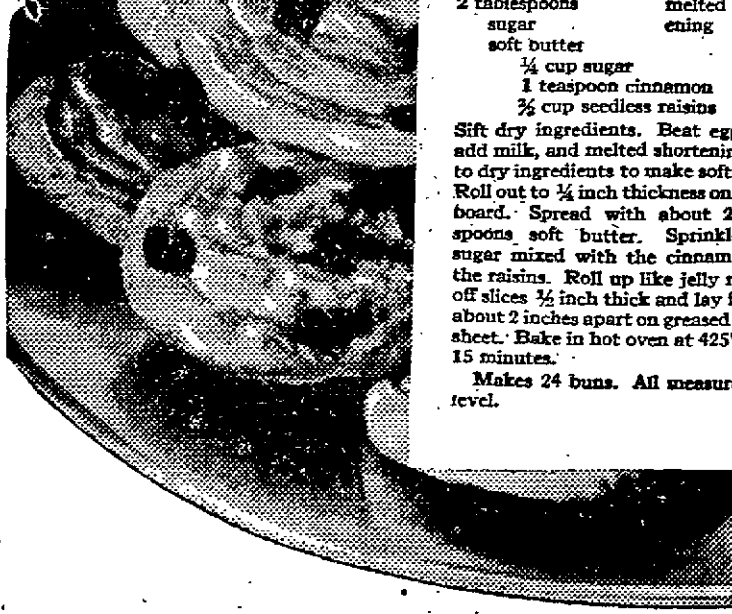

"We must admit you used your head. And now that everything's all right, I think I'll take a snooze. If one of us will sit and row, the other three can safely go to sleep. Good rest is one thing that we really shouldn't lose."

"They all took turns, and through the night the little boat moved on all right. Then morning came and everyone was shortly wide awake. "Oh, look!" cried Coppy. "Here's a treat. I've found some canvas 'neath this seat. It is plenty big enough, a sail we ought to make."

"They spread it out and Coppy said, 'It's big enough. Let's go ahead. An oar will answer as a mast.' The oar was set up straight. And then the canvas, fastened tight, made them a sail that seemed just right. So shortly they were sailing on at quite a speedy gait."

(The Tinymites are lifted into the air in the next story.)

Very quick breakfast buns!

(made with this quick baking powder)

Crisp and crusty, spicy and hot from the oven—here are buns you can stir up so easily any morning, with this recipe and Dr. Price's, the quick baking powder!

We call Dr. Price's a quick baking powder because it starts puffing up your doughs and batters the very second you add milk or water to your dry ingredients. It keeps on working as the heat of the oven spreads through your dough or batter. And it continues to work until it has lifted your cakes and hot breads into perfect marvels of tender lightness!

Call your family down to breakfast tomorrow morning with the warm, delicately-browned fragrance of these quick buns. But first, say "Dr. Price's Phosphate Baking Powder" to your grocer and make room on your pantry shelf for the bright butter-yellow can of lightness.

But Dr. Price's Phosphate Baking Powder needs no special recipes. Use it with your own favorite recipes just as you would any other baking powder. For Dr. Price's is the same quick, light baking powder wherever or whenever you use it!

After 16 years in the same office, which breaks all records in English post offices for long service, Walter Frost has just relinquished his position as chief supervisor at Reigate, headed by the Bishop of Northampton, 700 pilgrims, among them 60 sick cases, including 23 on stretchers, recently left England on a pilgrimage to Lourdes, France.

Proposals!

A glance at her blonde loveliness tells better than words why this beautiful New York City girl has received such flattering proposals from kings of movie and stage land. She's Collette Francis, of 255 East 25th St., Brooklyn; now one of the charmers in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita."

Miss Francis says: "Since I've been on the stage, so many people have asked me what I do to get the beautiful golden gleam and sparkle in my hair that I am beginning to think I'm really taking wonderful care of it. I really never thought much about it. What I do is so simple. 'Like so many' of my girl friends here in New York, I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. That keeps my hair silky and gleaming, makes it easy to dress and holds it like I arrange it, for hours. My scalp was very dry, and I had a lot of dandruff when I first started on it, but all of that trouble stopped quickly. And Danderine keeps my hair so clean I don't need to shampoo half as often, now."

Danderine removes that oily film from your hair and gives it new life, and lustre. It isn't oily and doesn't show. It gives tone and vigor to the scalp. The generous bottles are just 35c at any drug or toilet counter. A delicately fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl.

FACTS ABOUT OUR FRATERNALS

This is the fourth of a series of thumbnail sketches about fraternal organizations in Appleton.

Appletonerie, No. 574, Fraternal Order of Eagles will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the lodge this year, for it was organized Oct. 3, 1903 and received its charter and was duly installed Dec. 23, 1903. There were 64 charter members and the object of the organization was stated to be "to unite fraternally for mutual benefit, protection, improvement and association generally, male members of the Caucasian race not less than 18 years of age and not over 50 for beneficial members and over 50 for social members, of good moral character and who believe in a supreme Being."

From 64 members the lodge has grown till at the present time there are 782 members. First meetings were held at the German Rhine lodge building, later meetings were held above the F. W. Hauert store and then the lodge met at Harmonie hall, which was purchased in 1912 and is the present Eagle hall.

Julie Waite was past worthy president of the first lodge and David Brettschneider was the first president of the lodge. Other officers were Charles Fosse, worthy vice president; E. A. Audience Is Pleased With Niles Dancers DANCING with an infectious joy that could not avoid being carried over to the audience, Doris Niles and her ballet with gorgeous costumes and agile feet, fascinated a large audience at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday night. The appearance of the ballet was under auspices of the Appleton Womens club.

Appleton people have seen little that is good in dancing and seldom have they seen a program of this size that was so varied and that held the interest so consistently. The musical personality of Miss Niles, the vivacity of her dancing and that of her supporting cast, and the elaborateness of the costumes all served to captivate the audience and frequently roused it to great enthusiasm. Miss Niles was forced to acknowledge many recalls, and upon the continued applause of her audience danced again the crowning number of the evening, Espana Cani, a Spanish number in a striking white gown and red shawl. Another Spanish number which was enthusiastically received was Memories of the Arena, in which the dancer gave vent to her natural exuberance.

Throughout the program there was a coordination of graceful movement, curious and intricate dance steps, animated and alluring facial expression, and rhythmic body movements. One of the most elaborate numbers was Miss Niles in a dance called Southern Roses by Strauss, in which she appeared in wig, hat and old southern gown, and at the end of her dance threw roses to the audience. Other picturesque numbers by Miss Niles were Du Barry, Margot of India, and Russian Gypsy.

The Japanese Cherry Tree Fete, by Miss Niles and her ballet, was particularly striking, with Butterflies and Dragons, a dance with streamer effects, the high point in the fete. Another popular dance by the ballet was The Winds, in which the figures appeared in draperies of rainbow hues and long flowing hair colored green, gray, blond, and red. The abandon of movement made this number a delightful one. The unsophisticated charm of Flowers in Vienna made it a lovely number, and Mazurka de la Court in the early part of the program was popularly received.

One of the outstanding points in the dancing, both of Miss Niles and her cast, was the ability to interpret the music both in the dancing and by the facial expression. Even though one lacked the historical information about Mme. Pompadour and Du Barry, the dramatization in the dance told the story as plainly as was necessary. Particularly was this apparent in Memories of the Arena.

Doris Niles was assisted by her sister, Cornelia who danced several interesting numbers, including

Mme. Pompadour in gorgeous rose costume; and Dancing Waves, a graceful number enhanced by the use of lighting effects and evanescent draperies.

Rondalla Usandizaga, a sextette of Spanish guitarists, played a group of numbers at the beginning of the third part of the program. The entire performance was accompanied by an orchestra under the direction of Vladimir Brenner.

South play the remainder of the hand? (Fill the blank before you read the answer that follow.)

ANSWER BLANK

9. THE ANSWER

South should exhaust the Clubs, lead the Ace and King of Spades, and then put West in the lead with a Diamond.

South can count in addition to the one Diamond trick already won, four Clubs, two Spades, and one Heart; he needs one more trick. The adversaries have won two Diamond tricks and can take two more if West obtains the lead. If West should have the King of Hearts and South should attempt to make a second Heart trick by leading that suit, the adversaries would save game, but the game is a cinch for Declarer played on the basis above described. West, at trick 10, will be left with two Diamonds, and two other cards. If two Diamonds, but Declarer then must make the last two tricks and placed in the lead, he will make his game, because West must lead a Spade or a Heart. Should West lead a Spade, Dummy will take it and the Ace of Hearts will take the last trick; should West lead a Heart, it will be up to Closed Hand's Ace-Queen.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but you may try it free by using this coupon.

PIGEON LOVERS AID BIRDS

When official pigeon catchers for the city of London recently tried to trap some of the hundreds of birds that have been doing damage to public buildings around Trafalgar Square, they were thwarted by lovers of the pigeons. As the catchers tried to entice the pigeons into cages, people threw seed and bread to the birds to keep them from the traps, while others shoed their favorites from the "danger zone." The officials captured only 13 birds.

STAGE And SCREEN

WHAT OTHERS HAD TO SAY
"Sunrise" is indeed a great picture, one that in many ways has never been equalled. It is a new gesture; it is inspirational for those who take the screen seriously.

—Los Angeles Times.

—New York Daily News.

Though Murnau has chalked up several artistic and financial successes to his credit, it is our opinion that he has surpassed himself in "Sunrise." For years after most of the cinema successes of today are forgotten, "Sunrise" will be reissued wherever movies are shown.

—New York American.

The dramatic action of this humble hero and his workaday heroine is spaced between one dawning and another, but in that scant interval there is packed an emotional lifetime. Murnau reveals a remarkable resourcefulness of effects; the playing of George O'Brien and Janet Gaynor and their associates is generally convincing and the story unfolds in settings inexpressively lovely and appropriate.

—Variety.

Motion picture critics in the newspapers have just completed their task of selecting the ten best pictures of the year—and a great deal of wasted effort they have put into it. For "Sunrise" is in itself the best ten pictures of this year or any other year. Here, at last, is the production which fulfills everything that was ever expected of Hollywood. It is not only a transcending artistic triumph, but excellent entertainment and a financial success.

—Masonic Review.

"KIT CARSON"

Magnificent scenic backgrounds, spectacular dashes of Indian hordes, a swiftly moving story in which the spirit of the west of ninety years ago has been caught, are the outstanding features of Fred Thomson's Paramount special, "Kit Carson," at Fischers Appleton Theatre Friday.

In the broad sweep of the narrative two love stories which figured in the life of the famous trapper and scout—that of an Indian girl for Kit Carson, played by the western star, and that of Kit Carson for a beautiful Spanish girl. It has its lighter moments too, with a series of old time trappers at play. Silver King, Mr. Thomson's famous white horse, contributes his share both to the drama and the laughter.

The cast is exceptionally strong.

Raoul Paoli, as the French-Canadian trapper and rival of Kit, gives a most distinguished performance. No. 11. For "Sunrise" is in itself the best ten pictures of this year or any other year. Here, at last, is the production which fulfills everything that was ever expected of Hollywood. It is not only a transcending artistic triumph, but excellent entertainment and a financial success.

15 BOYS WILL ENTER PING-PONG TOURNAMENT

SERVICE STORES WILL REMAIN INDEPENDENT

At the meeting of the service stores Tuesday night at the Junction store, members of the organization decided to continue as an independent local group, rather than become affiliated with the state Home organization sponsored by Joannes Brothers of Green Bay. A decision also was made to institute a drive for new members and Harry Ingold was made chairman of the membership committee. Later in the week a meeting of prospective members will be held.

State Is Seeking Man To Wash Windows Of Capitol

Madison—(P)—Sooner or later the newspapers will have to write "famous" stories about the man who washes the windows of the state capitol.

He is the "big pane" of the whole capitol.

C. B. Balahrd, state superintendent of public property, worried over the safety of some of the older janitors who hung from ledges, leaned out and hung tenaciously, to clean the windows of the great state building, decided that he had better let a contract to some firm of agile wall-scalers and brush-wielders, who know their swipes with the rubber drier.

"A commercial window cleaning firm's the solution for our problem," said he. So he asked for bids.

They came too high; about $2,000 a year was the least for which a cleaning company would guarantee full rays through the capitol crystals. And at that it didn't obviate the matter of accident insurance; because the firms all advised that the state would be equally responsible with them for compensation insurance.

So Mr. Balahrd is casting about for some one to fill the role of window washer extraordinaire by appointment to the state of Wisconsin.

Young enough to be unafraid of the dizzy heights of the capitol dome, but not so good looking that his presence will greatly divert capitol stenographers.

Uncontrollable. He must never divulge for any sum to newspaper reporters, the contests he may see behind committee room windows and in private sessions of political heads.

Undeity. He must be able to maintain perfect equilibrium and equilibrium regardless of the heights to which he goes and the beautiful scenery he may find from these perches.

The state will furnish him the regulation strap belt with which to buckle himself to the sills and jambs, water, brushes and driers, a nice insurance policy and a prayer that if he falls it will be from one of the lower ledges.

DEMOCRATS WILL BE UNITED IN CONGRESS

they will head off a line of cleavage inside the Republican party and make a bid for the votes of Progressive Republicans.

The last thing most students of politics and government would care to see in America is a break-up of the two-party system and the substitution thereof of the group or bloc system which nearly threatened the Republican party's existence in congress in the decade just closed and which was only averted by the increasing number of conservatives elected from both the Democratic and Republican ranks.

The insurgent progressive bloc in congress is not as powerful as it used to be and without the aid of the Democrats is not at all the balance of power.

If Governor Smith had not announced the day after election that he was through with running for public office, his radio speech might have construed as a bid for 1932.

The address, however, was prompted by a desire to keep the Democratic party intact. There has been talk of reorganizing the party. It comes mostly from Democratic chieftains who bolted the ticket.

Mr. Smith's speech means that if there is any reorganizing it will be done by the people who remained loyal to the party, Democrats as detached from Tammany and witness as Senator Carter Glass or Josephus Daniels and others. It is usually very important between campaigns just who keeps the control of the party machinery.

The finances of the party have to be kept in shape and the men and women who contributed large sums to help the Smith cause, would not relish an abandonment of the whole party to those who fought it.

Governor Smith's speech was indeed aimed at 1932 but if Mr. Smith is to aid a man like Franklin Roosevelt in winning the next nomination or if his followers are to dominate in the councils of the party they must make that clear in a militant spirit at this time and that's why the radio speech was made.

NEED PERMANENT GROUP

It would not be surprising if the Democrats in congress were stimulated by the existence of a permanent and active Democratic organization which would aid them in their congressional contest two years hence. While John J. Raskob undoubtedly has opposition inside his party, he has nevertheless an organizing ability which in the next two or three years may give the Democrats more of a voice in public affairs than is ordinarily the case with the minority party.

If he attempts, however, to back the wet movement on the party he will run into difficulties and more friction. There are signs that he prefers to continue as national chairman until the regular time for choosing a successor four years hence. It is said that hundreds of wet Republicans are indignantly saying their votes for Hoover should not be construed as meaning the wet movement was defeated at the polls, though it is also true dry Democrats are insisting the big popular vote for Governor Smith should not be considered an endorsement of his wet views.

The Smith speech is the beginning of a reorganization of the Democratic party which with characteristic resiliency takes a crushing defeat as a stimulus to greater activity rather than as a sentence of death.

Miss Ruth Cole, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fellows and son Richard, of Algona, spent Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William J. Bauerfeind.

SMALL CHANCE SEEN FOR MORE FUNDS FOR STATE BOOSTER TOUR

Prospects for Appropriation by Legislature Appear Slight

Madison—(AP)—Prospects of the 1929 state legislature passing an appropriation for another state booster tour were admittedly scant as first suggestions are heard in the capitol these days.

Political complexities that arose during the state tour through the south last February were given as reasons by most officials who were on the fifteen-car yellow-coach train as the reason for there being little likelihood of another similar one soon.

Representatives of at least a dozen central Wisconsin counties were invited to meet Wednesday night at Stevens Point to start an unofficial movement to bring about another tour.

George H. Dobbins, Fremont, took the lead in calling the Stevens Point meeting. He was a member of the Southern Tour party last year. Representatives were invited from Waupaca, Portage, Wood, Marathon, Winnebago, Shawano, Outagamie, Fond du Lac, Door and other counties.

Members of the Southern Tour party now in the capitol interviewed on the subject were unanimous in saying that the tour "undoubtedly rebounded to some good for the state of Wisconsin," but added with equal unanimity that "if they ever have another one it should be put on a thoroughly business with men other than those in politics in charge of the train."

At the close of the first state tour, the suggestion among state officials was that the next tour, if the event were to be made an annual one, traverse central states. The first one covered all the Mississippi valley states.

Where Vestris Went Down

This map shows the setting of the sea tragedy in which the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris became waterlogged and sank, leaving 337 passengers and crew in a rough sea, huddled in lifeboats, on rafts, or clinging to floating wreckage. The vessel, bound from New York to Buenos Aires, foundered about 240 miles off the Virginia Capes, and less than 150 miles from New York.

Big Ten Title Won't Be Settled By Saturday's Games

H. S. TEAM WORKS ON PASS DEFENSE

Popp Moved to Tackle in Effort to Add Strength to Line

Apparently Coach Joseph Shields of Appleton High school believes his grid team's greatest weakness is against forward passes. Anyway he again had his griders out on the third ward field Wednesday evening and they spent a long session knocking down and intercepting passes. Coaches DeJorge and Cooper emulated the Red Devils and Shields tossed the ball at them; when they tired Joe scrambled out in an effort to catch his backfield napping.

However, Shields isn't of the opinion that Green Bay will try throwing passes all afternoon Saturday at Green Bay for he has started bolstering up the weak places in his line, too. Popp, fullback, has been shifted to left tackle in place of Abraham. The latter is a fighting youngster but he tops the scales at only 145 pounds and Shields figures Popp's weight will come to good use against the Bay's off tackle smashes.

Placing Popp in the line means that Bartman and Holterman will get the call for fullback against the Bays. The former has first chance at the job because he is a mighty fine man for interference and also can batter away at the line.

Minneapolis has been playing center most of the time this week but Tiny Rankin will be back on the job if he can stand the going Saturday. He was battered a bit against Kaukauna and hasn't been in a suit all week.

The highs are all primed for the Bays Saturday, most of the griders having reached the point where they talk and sleep nothing but Beat East. Many of the youngsters realize that their chances for placing on all-conference teams this year depends on their showing against the Bays. The Orange has a couple potential stars in Kunitz, Kneib and Scherer and, of course they'll want to be on their best behavior Saturday. Light drills Thursday and Friday evenings will complete the week's practice.

VIKING HARRIERS MEET MARQUETTE

Run Will Be Held from Whiting Field With Finish on Gridiron

A cross country race that will virtually decide the state championship will be run on Whiting field Saturday afternoon during the Lawrence-Carroll football game when the Viking harriers hook up with Marquette university runners. A mile over the Milwaukee team means the Vikings have beaten the Vikes have beaten the top notches of the university of Wisconsin squad.

Coach A. C. Denny has had his runners out on Whiting field all week getting limbered up after their victory over Milwaukee Normal at Milwaukee Friday. All of the men are reported in first class condition. Members of the squad who will wear the Vike colors against the Marquette team are Capt. Charles Wolfe, Art Mueller, Menning, Frank Jesse and Charles Barsch.

The Vikes have defeated Lake Forest, Ripon and Milwaukee normal harriers so far this season.

Cochet And Helen Are Ranking Tennis Stars

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
N attends the selection of the outstanding tennis stars of 1928. The process requires no heavy thinking and involves no manipulation of mathematics.

The ritual of crowning Henri Cochet as the tennis king of the year and Helen Wills as the queen warrants no more ceremony than the mere writing of their names on the ticket. Because there was no contest and there is something drab about acclaiming someone on an acclamation ballot.

In the case of M. Cochet there is a mental warning against rash judgment in giving him the honor without a struggle and a lingering bunch that he didn't knock every rival dead.

The records show that he was beaten at Wimbledon in the British championship tournament by Rene Lacoste, who was the 1927 king beyond a dispute. But the records show that just previous to the British show Lacoste was trimmed by Cochet in the French national championship, and that in the challenge round for the Davis Cup, Cochet was the hero in repelling the American challenge and that Lacoste was beaten in one of his singles matches.

Chances For Upsets In Games Played Next Week

Wisconsin Meets Minnesota and Iowa Battles Michigan

Chicago (AP)—The race for Big Ten championship honors won't be ended by the Iowa-Wisconsin game Saturday if Minnesota and Michigan succeed in their ambitions to scramble the conference standings.

Only a victory Saturday and another Nov. 24 can insure either Iowa or Wisconsin a clear claim to the championship. A defeat for either or both would allow Ohio and Illinois a chance to tie for the title.

Whether Iowa of Wisconsin wins, they face later stumbling blocks in Michigan and Minnesota. Iowa must meet Michigan's up and coming eleven, Nov. 24, while Wisconsin faces a final game with its traditional rival, Minnesota, the same day.

With non-conference opponents carded for this week, Minnesota and Michigan have forgotten everything but the two championship contenders—Iowa and Wisconsin—and are working overtime for next week's games. Minnesota, especially, looks dangerous for its game against Wisconsin.

Twelve times since 1896, when the championship race became an annual prize, two or more teams have been neck-and-neck at the pinnacle of the percentage column.

The Iowa-Wisconsin game, this Saturday's elimination battle, apparently will be straight football against forward passes. Wisconsin has developed a passing game and it is likely to be unleashed at the first opportunity. Iowa on the other hand, will depend on straight smashes and flying wedge plays.

Both rivals worked until after dark Wednesday night and both appeared to be in their best form at the season. Iowa has recovered from its bruises suffered in the Ohio State game and successfully stopped freshmen with Wisconsin plays.

The punting problem is worrying Coach Pat Page, who is attempting to whip his Indiana team into a stone wall to repel Northwestern.

Northwestern will send 29 men to Indiana Thursday night and there isn't an injured man among them.

Coach Bob Zupke is worrying about overconfidence again. With his Illinois eleven favored to rout Chicago without much effort, the "Flying Dutchman" is acting gloomy.

Injuries have taken their toll of Chicago's team again, however and its outlook for a single conference victory was dark.

With Wabash as the immediate problem and with several regulars out with injuries, Purdue hasn't started worrying about Indiana yet.

KOTAL WITH PACKERS ON EASTERN GRID TRIP

Eddie Kotal, former Lawrence college grid and cage star, and now a member of the Green Bay Packers left Thursday afternoon for New York with the Big Bay Blues who are taking their annual jaunt into eastern territory. The Packers will arrive in New York Saturday and work out on the Polo Grounds during the afternoon. Sunday they play the first game on the eastern trip, against the New York Giants. The Giants are one of the few teams which beat the Packers this year.

The eastern trip will keep the Packers away until Dec. 6, when they will return to the Bay and disband for the season.

"Where'd you go to school, did you play football?" Razz asked him. "Wasn't good enough to play," Lund answered and Razz smiled and asked no more questions.

Just watch the youngster next year. He hasn't had much experience but when he gets on the varsity squad no one will keep him off the first eleven for besides possessing a natural football instinct in backing up a line they say he can smash through on line plunges just like Myrt Basing used to back in '20 and '21.

Received a telephone call from some one over at Menasha this morning who wanted to know if Michigan meets Minnesota this year. The answer is that they do.

Both teams have two games left this year. Minnesota playing Haskell at Minneapolis Saturday and Wisconsin at Madison a week from Saturday; Michigan meets Michigan State Saturday and Iowa at Ann Arbor a week from Saturday. Haven't the slightest idea why the "Little Brown Jug" wasn't carded this year.

BARBER BOWLERS BEAT TELEPHONE COMPANY TEAM

Those three barbers over at Hotel Northern are getting better, as a matter of fact, almost good. They went out again Wednesday evening and trimmed a three man team representing the telephone company, two out of three games and copped the highest pin total. A few days ago they also beat the butcher keepers. The rams were bowled on the A. A. L. alleys.

MUCH ADO ABOUT SEVERAL THINGS
by G. R. McIntyre

Lawrence Freshman will finish that mean task of furnishing opposition for the Viking varsity either Thursday or Friday evenings and disband. Little has been said about the Vike yealings, because there isn't much that can be said. Going over the group it's easy to notice the youngsters are mighty small, comparatively speaking. There are no husky centers, no big tackles, hardly anything that goes to make up a varsity eleven for next season.

At this writing there appears to be about two youngsters for Coach Clarence Rasmussen's line next year. One is Kunitz, an Appleton boy, the other a youngster named Amundson. Both are heavy enough to fit into college football teams and will be likely candidates for guard positions next year. Aside from these there don't seem to be any promising youngsters of college football size on high. Should some of the youngsters fill out a bit during the next year perhaps Razz will have a few more potential stars.

The yearling backfield boasts only two stars, although, quarterback who didn't have much chance to show his stuff because of injuries and a Lund a youngster who has been playing fullback. The rest of the backfield men are nothing to rave about, and of the two Lund seems the one destined for some place, before he gets through with college ball.

He isn't terrible big just now but will fill out during the next year. He came to Lawrence from West high, Green Bay, according to reports, and first made himself known when he shot as pretty a forward pass as ever seen with near perfect ease one night at an early workout. When scrimmage started he became a veritable pest to the varsity, backing of the freshman line a veteran and getting into most every play.

One night after seeing the youngster spoil most everything Coach Rasmussen ask him where he won his football letter and the answer came back that he hadn't ever won one.

"Where'd you go to school, did you play football?" Razz asked him. "Wasn't good enough to play," Lund answered and Razz smiled and asked no more questions.

Just watch the youngster next year. He hasn't had much experience but when he gets on the varsity squad no one will keep him off the first eleven for besides possessing a natural football instinct in backing up a line they say he can smash through on line plunges just like Myrt Basing used to back in '20 and '21.

ROCKNE WILL SEE TECH-IRISH GAME

Knote Isn't Going Away This Year When Team Plays Carnegie

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—Knote Rockne has announced he will positively be on hand to personally direct his Notre Dame eleven when it clashes with Carnegie Tech on Carter Field Saturday.

Two years ago, Rockne learned a lesson from Carnegie Tech and hasn't forgotten it. He learned that no matter how weak Coach Wally Steffen's eleven is it is always dangerous.

Notre Dame was headed toward a national football championship in 1926 when the team invaded Carnegie Tech's territory. Satisfied his eleven was better by three touchdowns and that no maddening was necessary, Rockne left direction in the hands of assistants and went to Chicago to watch the Army-Navy game. Later he was handed a telegram:

"Carnegie Tech 19; Notre Dame 0."

"Someone is kidding me," Rockne countered, only to learn that the score was accurate.

"They can't catch me again that way," Rockne commented. "Anyways, we are the underdogs this time as Carnegie Tech has defeated every team it has met this season."

Every ticket for the game has been sold, assuring a crowd of 30,000.

Cuisinier — Little But Oh My!

The sparkplug of the Wisconsin team—that's what they're calling wee "Bo" Cuisinier, Wisconsin quarterback. He has performed sensationally in all Wisconsin games, thrilling spectators with many brilliant plays this season. Cuisinier weighs less than 160 pounds, but is a splendid quarterback, runs nicely with the ball and has done excellent defensive work. Wisconsin officials assert he deserves a spot on the All-Western team this year.

KEARNS SINGS OLD STORY

JACK KEARNS says he is through with the fight business as soon as Mickey Walker is washed up and the temptation is too great to resist to say that Kearns is about through now.

The little piece here with is not about Walker but about Kearns. Men tire of a tricky business such as boxing is after they have been in it as long as Kearns and want to get out of it. Few are able to do it, however. Either they have to continue as a means of livelihood or the fascination of the business holds them.

Bill Gibson swore when Tunney retired that he was through with the fight business. After having thrown away several fortunes, Gibson found himself with a roll big enough to keep him for life after he got his out of Tunney's two Dempsey shots.

But Tunney hardly had made his announcement when Gibson was hot in the chase after Knute Hansen, the heavyweight, and when the contract squabbles are settled Bill probably will have the man.

BUT HE MAY MEAN IT
Kearns probably means what he says and if he retires he no doubt will stick to it for two reasons. He is the smartest manager in the modern history of the ring in two ways.

He was smart in handling his fighters and he was smart in handling himself. He has plenty of money now and he can do just as any whim or fancy strikes him.

There is another thing about Kearns also. He has a vanity. Babe Ruth never will play with a minor league club and Kearns never will associate himself with a bum fighter. Champions are his only dish and there aren't any near champions running around loose.

Vikes In Long Practice Against Forward Passes

Carroll Sends Out Bear Stories About List of Injured

Having fooled the folks this week by giving his Vikings an evening of offense scrimmage, Coach Clarence Rasmussen of Lawrence college again double crossed the experts by giving the boys three quarters of an hour defensive scrimmage Wednesday evening. However, that is the last hard workout for the Vikes this season unless Razz again sends them to stop freshman passes Thursday night. If he chooses not to, Thursday and Friday's drills will be signal practices.

There wasn't much to record about Wednesday evening's practice aside from the fact that the Vikes secondary received a long drawn drill on stopping all kinds and variations of forward passes. To their credit it must be said the boys showed or intercepted every pass heaved their way and Coach Rasmussen was generally satisfied with the workout.

Physically the Vikings are in the same shape they were a few days ago. Capt. Ralph Barrell being the only cripple. He still is hobbling about on crutches and has little chance of playing against the Pioneers. A year ago Barrell injured his knee in the last two games of the season, playing for a quarter against Carroll before being carried off the field and going to the infirmary for a week.

The approaching Carroll game recalls that a year ago before the Carroll game the Vikes were a badly injured and battered gang. St. Mitchell breaking a hand in scrimmage the night before the game. There'll be no chance for pre-game injuries this season for scrimmage is all over now.

Saturday's game besides being the annual homecoming battle will be the last college grid contest for seven of the Vikes. Among them are Francis Bloomer who has been the cog in the Lawrence machine this year. Red Humphrey, guard, Ralph Barrell, if he hasn't already played his last college game, Fritz Schauer, center, and Bruce McInnis, half.

GR-R-R, BEAR STORY
Waukesha—With an ancient threat hanging above their heads, that of never having defeated Lawrence's Viking griders on the Appleton field, Carroll's Pioneers are preparing, with half a squad, and some of those crippled, to meet the Vikings.

Injuries have crept deeply into the Orange squad. Elmer Rasmussen, tackle, broke his arm in the Northwestern B game; Al Jentsch, guard, injured his ankle to the extent that he will not be able to play; Harold Rasmussen, ned, is out, as is Capt. Herb Bizer, who is still favoring the side in which a rib is broken, and Oriebake, flashy young quarterback.

Those losses will shift Reagan, a seasoned halfback, at end in place of H. Rasmussen. Morner will go in at guard for Jentsch. Fuesch, with a broken hand, will play tackle in E. Rasmussen's place. Red Pellens, flashy halfback, is bothered with boils, but may work out against the Blue.

NICE VOTERS
California, at the recent elections, voted down an amendment aimed to kill boxing in the state. Massachusetts voters passed an amendment permitting Sunday baseball and football and Cleveland voted for a bond issue to build a huge stadium on the lake front in which the Cleveland Indians will play their games.

It is possible that, with the same intelligent direction that was shown in the Massachusetts campaign, Pennsylvania may soon vote for Sunday baseball.

NURMI AFTER RECORD NOT AMERICAN CASH

Kimberly H. S. PLAYS FIRST CAGE GAME FRIDAY

Kimberly—Kimberly high school basketball team will play its first game of the season, Friday evening, Nov. 16. On that night the squad will meet the Denmark fiv, in a Little Nine conference game, in the local Clubhouse gym. The boys have been practicing steadily for the last few weeks and much time has been spent on an offense. The team is being backed by the student body, who are selling season tickets at $2 for the eight home games.

As a preliminary to the game Lefty's Aces will play the Peoples Clothing team of Appleton in their first game of the season. The first game is scheduled to be played at 7:15 o'clock. Those playing for the Aces are: Joseph Gossens, left forward; Buck Le May, right forward; Mike Du Chain, center; Matt DuPont, right guard; and "Lefty" Vander Zanden, left guard.

BADGER HARRIERS LOSE TWO MEN FOR FRIDAY RUN

Madison (AP)—Probably without services of two veteran runners, Coach T. E. Jones' Western conference championship cross-country team will engage in its last dual meet before the title grid Nov. 24. The Badgers will meet the Iowa harriers over the three and seven-eighths mile golf links course Friday afternoon at Iowa City.

According to the coach, Capt. William Burgess will not make the trip, but will remain here to rest for the annual conference grind in Madison the following week. Coach Jones believes that the slightly built captain needs the rest and this will aid the Badgers in their efforts to annex their fifth successive title.

Harold Moe, another veteran, may not run because of an ankle injury received early this week in a work-out. Mr. Jones feels that if Moe runs now, while the ankle is in weakened condition, he may lose speed for the Western Conference championships.

HIS FOURTH CLUB
Rogers Hornsby will be playing with his fourth National League club next summer. He has played with St. Louis, New York, and Boston in recent years and will be with the Chicago club next season.

U. W. GRIDDERS PREP FOR WEATHER, IOWA

Thisty Remembers Badgers Played in Snow Storm in '52

Madison—(AP)—A cold, strong wind whipped into Randall playing field Wednesday night and the Wisconsin varsity got another taste of what the kind of weather Iowa playing field offers.

The queer Iowa climate, which caught the Badgers in a blizzard three years ago, has caused Glenn Thistlethwaite much worry, but the varsity in the practices has encountered all kinds. As a result, the passing attack has been formulated not only to baffle the opposition, but also the elements. As a result, in an offensive dummy scrimmage, the coach had his men devote much time to their passing game.

Development of a "stopper" for the vaunted Iowa running game and the passing game, which so far has been something of a mystery, took the greater part of Wednesday night's practice. With freshmen running Iowa plays, the varsity studied and worked to stop them in a long dummy scrimmage.

Earlier, kickoff formations and punting the ball was practiced. No cowbells sounded, but the varsity was in a fighting mood and went through its drills with snap and vigor.

Cuisinier and Behr are two probable starters in the back field, with Lusby as the probable third. The full backs post still is undecided with Harold Smith, the Milwaukee sophomore and former Lake Forest academy star having the edge over the veteran, Rebolz.

Badger fans are picturing a possible battle more spectacular than the Nagurski-McLain dual that received considerable publicity before the Minnesota-Iowa game. Wisconsin followers point to the fact that Smith was out until last Saturday from injuries suffered in the game against Purdue. Then, against Chicago, almost single-handed he drove from the 30 yard line for a touchdown.

A. A. STAGG Praised AS CHICAGO ALUMNI GIVE ANNUAL DINNER

Chicago—(AP)—As far as university of Chicago alumni are concerned, Amos Alonzo Stagg can coach football at their alma mater as long as he cares to.

"The grand old man" of football was the only one to receive compliments from the alumni at their annual banquet last night as they arraigned the football team for its failure to win a single conference game this season. The school administration received criticism because of its high scholastic standing, 85, and the $800 tuition fee.

HIS PLAY IS ERRATIC
Followers of Ohio State football say you never can tell what Byron Eby, halfback, will do. He looks like the greatest halfback in the world at times and like the worst in existence at other times.

Tired TIRES

are like tired fighters!

When a fighter's muscles get tired he lacks speed—lacks strength—lacks resistance—and is easily knocked out.

When the cords of a balloon tire are tired out—they are lifeless—without resilience—unable to absorb punishment—and an easy prey for any sudden shock.

If it seems strange that a tire should become "tired," read these amazing facts:

How tires get "Tired"

Due to the low air pressure carried, the sidewalls of a balloon tire are sharply flexed where they come in contact with the road.

In a tire of average size this violent flexing or bending occurs over 25,000 times an hour, at common touring speeds—

—over 200,000 times during a single day's run over fine hard roads.

What happens in those rapidly flexing sidewalls when ordinary old-style cord is used?

Like the taut, strained muscles of the fighter, these stiff, inflexible cords begin to tire. Fatigue sets in. Finally they become tired out—devitalized—lifeless—with no resistance.

Then under some ordinary, every day shock, the weakened, over-flexed sidewall fabric gives way. A perfectly sound—looking tire collapses and costs you several thousand miles.

Economy lies in choosing the tires that you know have sidewall scientifically designed and tested to withstand fierce flexing—Goodyear.

Supertwist Cord neutralizes fierce flexing

The new type cord used in Goodyear Supertwist Balloon tires is engineered to withstand sidewall flexing for the life of the tire.

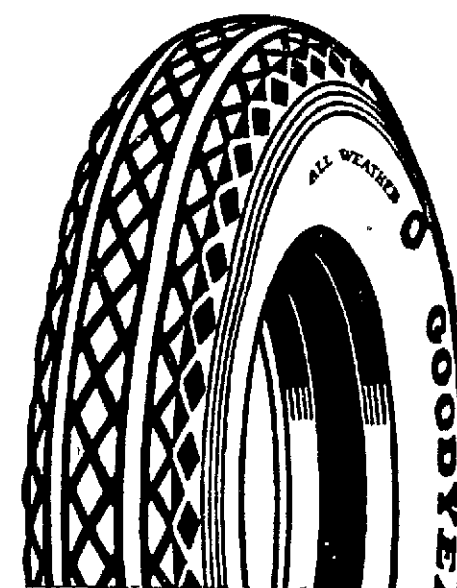

It is made by a patented Goodyear process. Stretch a piece and it "comes back"—like rubber.

Hence, being violently flexed 25,000 times an hour or even 50,000 times an hour means nothing to this wonderful, elastic Supertwist cord. Each individual cord is inherently relaxed. Strain which quickly tires ordinary cord is easily absorbed. Fierce flexing does no damage.

Let us save wasted miles

Tired Tires may waste 10 per cent to 25 per cent of the mileage you pay to get. Why risk even a 10 per cent loss?

Let us equip your car with Goodyear Supertwist Balloons—with the shock-absorbing sidewalls and the famous All-weather tread. They cost no more now. They cost much less per mile. And you are saved all worry about Tired Tires. Come in and compare our reasonable prices.

ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED
SYBIL THORNE, spoiled and pampered, has consummated a sorry marriage with a drunkard, RICHARD EUSTIS, whom she met on shipboard. She is now in love, throwing discretion to the winds. Sybil married him after an acquaintance of five days. On their honeymoon in Havana he becomes horribly and almost constantly intoxicated. Within two weeks there are bitter quarrels, followed always by reconciliations. Finally, when Sybil threatens to go to another hotel, her husband rushes from their apartment, leaving her to do as she chooses. Sybil's mad marriage is particularly disastrous because she was engaged at the time to CRAIG NEWHALL, a fine chap, who is in Boston, knows nothing of her marriage. Sybil took a trip to Cuba with Mabel Blake, a social worker and met Eustis on shipboard.

Mabel, meantime, has met an American named JACK Moore and becomes engaged to him. The first time Sybil left her husband Mabel and Moore persuaded her to return to him. But now that Richard has left in a towering rage, Sybil resolves to go alone to another hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

Emotional reactions, thought Sybil disinterestedly, were extremely fatiguing. She would not go tearing after Richard. She would not cry, or sob, or pray. She expressed a faint inclination to laugh.

"No hysterics," she told herself sternly. And, being a creature of habit, she powdered her nose and straightened her hat.

She looked about the room, taking in every detail—much as one looks upon the dead, to remember forever something one will never see again. Then she took her bag and proceeded soberly to the elevator.

At the Ingle-Terra she engaged a room and leaving orders not to be disturbed, undressed and slipped into the white satin nightgown that Richard said made her look like a vestal priestess.

She was glad that she was so tired—so utterly, painfully weary.

There were aches in the back of her knees and it was good to stretch between the cool sheets. Good, too, to be alone.

Completely exhausted, she slept until late forenoon and woke with a guilty start and an oppressive feeling of impending disaster. She phoned for ice-cold orange juice and black coffee and took a cold shower that made her tingle.

The sun was shining and the streets were full of people bound for their siestas. Dressing hastily she sought the sizzling Prado and hurried to the Seville. She saw clerks glance at her curiously and wondered if they knew she had left the hotel the night before. The lights were burning in their room. Perhaps Richard had not returned. She turned the knob quietly.

"Maybe he's asleep," she thought. "Poor little boy!"

She tipped across the threshold. Yes, he was asleep. Sprawled across the bed. Dressed even to his shoes.

She moaned.

An empty bottle lay on the floor. Richard's favorite drink—Havana rum. His coat sprawled where he had flung it and an open bill told spilled its contents. Cards and letters, littered the floor and there was paper money, sticky with the sugary liquor Richard loved.

Absently Sybil stooped for the coat and shuffled the confused papers together. It seemed as if she was always tidying after Richard. Socks and shoes and soiled linen. He never hung anything up, or put things away.

"Richard!" she called, bending over him.

He did not start at the sound of her voice, but began to breathe noisily. As she turned away, shuddering her glance fell on the papers she still held. On top was a square white card.

Isabella Petite
Amistad & Cognac.

Triguena? Triguena? Sybil's brows drew together thoughtfully. The papers slipped from her fingers and tumbled to the floor.

Then, without a backward glance, hard on her little French heels, she left the room. Ten minutes later she was with Mabel and Jack Moore at the Pasaie.

"There's no use talking, Mab. Please, Jack! It doesn't make any difference what you say. Will horses couldn't drag me back. There's a boat this afternoon and I'm going to get it. You can come or not just as you choose, Mab."

"But, Sib, we haven't anything ready! How about your trunk?"

"I'll send a message to the manager. He'll take care of it all right."

"Where's Rich?"

"Asleep."

"Does he know you're going?"

"He doesn't care what I do."

"Oh, Sib darling, if you run away, there'll be hundreds and hundreds of miles between you. Jack can't you reason with her?"

Sybil's mouth hardened and her eyes were cold as steel.

"Listen," she began firmly, "I didn't intend to tell you. I'll never tell anyone else. Last night after you people went, Richard was horribly abusive. I left him and went to the Ingle-Terra. This morning I woke all brimming with wifely love and idiotic devotion. I thought Rich might be sick. I felt sure he would be repentant. And I meant to forgive him once more and start in all over again. Exactly like a poor adoring fool, you see. So I hurried back to the Seville and up to our room."

"There lay my husband. Drunk, across the bed. An empty bottle on the floor. And beside it a little card. Do you remember, Mab, the card we saw on the boat? The purser showed it to us. It said 'una rubia' on it, and the purser told us it meant the girl was blond. This one said 'triguena.' I know that means brunet, because Richard says love is a matter of types, and you see he likes dark women."

"Sybil—oh, my dear!"

"Her name is Isabella, and she lives downstairs somewhere." Sybil was talking rapidly—disconnectedly now. "My husband particularly likes girls with dark eyes and olive skin."

"Sybil—darling—don't!" Mabel threw her arm protectively across Sybil's shoulders. "You poor girl—don't, dear!"

Gently Mabel drew her closer. "It's so horrible." She shivered. "And—besides—perhaps Richard didn't go there. Maybe he just found the card."

be a dumb-bell, Mab," she admonished.

Moore shifted his incredulous glance from one girl to the other. "Perhaps," he offered lamely, "I'd better go over and talk to him."

"Good Lord, no! Leave him alone. What good does talking do?" Sybil was angrily determined. "I don't mean to be rude, but you'll have to let me handle this my own way. Are you coming with me Mab—or aren't you?"

Mabel turned to her fiancé. "Could you come too, Jack?"

"Not a chance, dear. I have to make Santiago from here. But why don't you go ahead with Sybil? We'll let Eustis sleep until you get out. Then tonight I could drop over there, and tell him that Sybil is through. I suppose he knows how to reach you at home, Sybil?"

Sybil wrinkled her forehead perplexedly.

"Honestly, Jack, I don't know. He knows I'm from Boston, of course, but I don't believe he knows that the family is at Wianno. If I ever mentioned it, he has probably forgotten it.

"Oh, if he wanted to come to Boston, he could find me. Directories and 'phone books, you know."

"Anyhow, I've planned exactly what I shall do. Nobody need know I've been married at all. If Rich cables, or tries to get in touch with me so that Mother would know, I can tell her he's just a crazy man I met on the trip that I don't care a bit about. And you'll stick with me, won't you, Mab?"

"You know I will, Sib."

"Well then—I guess that's settled. Will you grab a furling. Jack, and hustle down to the steamship office and get us a stateroom? We have round-trip tickets. Mab's coming along like a good girl—aren't you, dear?"

"Oh, I suppose so," Mabel concurred dubiously.

"Angel!" approved Sybil, and turned briskly to Jack.

"I'll help Mabel pack," she told him, "and if you'll come to take us to the boat after you make the reservations, we'll be all ready."

When Jack had gone she turned helplessly, to hide the tears that stung her scorching lids. Fumbling in the depths of a big beaded bag,

4-H CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND PROGRAM HERE SATURDAY

ACHIEVEMENT PINS TO BE AWARDED TO PROJECT WINNERS

Expect Attendance of from 200 to 300 at County-wide Meeting

Almost 150 boys and girls, members of 4-H clubs in Outagamie county, will come to Appleton Saturday to attend an Achievement Day program, according to R. A. Amundson, county agent.

The program will open officially at 11:30 in the morning with a luncheon at Appleton Woman's club to be served by the county home economics department. The food will be brought into the city the day before by the children.

Following the luncheon, club members will go to the high school where, the afternoon program will start at 1 o'clock. County Agent Amundson will present Achievement pins to the members, and additional awards will be made by the rural affairs committee of the chamber of commerce.

The committee consists of George Walsh, H. C. Humphrey, G. R. Schafer, and George Noll.

Speakers on the program include Charles Parker, club leader of Marinette county, and James Kavanaugh, Brown county agent.

At 2:30 the boys will be taken to the Y. M. C. A. where the swimming pool and the gymnasium will be turned over to them. The girls will go to the gymnasium at the high school.

Augmented by parents and friends of club members, the attendance at the program will be between 200 and 300, it is estimated by Mr. Amundson.

Four-H clubs conduct project work for rural children. Mr. Amundson explained. The majority of projects consist of raising stock, although grain projects also are undertaken occasionally.

Achievement pins will be awarded to those members who completed their projects this year.

The four "H's," Mr. Amundson explained, stand for head, heart, hand, and health.

GRANGE HEAD LAYS DOWN FARM POLICY

Recommends Wider Organization of Farmers for Improvement Purposes

Washington — (AP) — A national farm policy was laid down Wednesday by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, in opening that organization's sixty-second annual convention.

Mr. Taber, in an address in which he asserted that the McNary-Haugen plan of farm relief is dead, and urged the adoption of the export devaluation method, which the grange has supported in the past.

Mr. Taber's agricultural program was divided into five sections. It included:

"Wider organization of the farmers themselves for improvement purposes; better balanced crop production in all sections; extensive research to find industrial uses for surplus farm products.

"Increased duties on many agricultural imports; broadened powers of the tariff commission; equality for the farmer on a level with other producers.

"Application to agriculture of the same type of adjustments of the tariff laws as have been necessary to accommodate industry. Specifically the use of the export devaluation plan as a means of making the tariff effective on those staple farm crops of which we still produce a surplus.

"Replace present haphazard, careless dumping methods with businesslike distribution, aided by the extension of cooperative marketing; and with the control always in the hands of the farmers themselves.

"Opposing new irrigation and reclamation projects until they appear of actual need for food purposes. Encouragement of preservation and extension of forest and recreation areas, including the reforestation of certain farm lands."

Various Types Of Cheese Described In Bulletin

Madison — (AP) — When it was announced that Wisconsin cheese industry in 1927 was worth more than $77,000,000 to the state, cheese makers through their various cooperative organizations asked consumers to study and learn more about the production.

One of the bulletins published by a cooperative cheese organization describes the various types of cheese manufactured and consumed in the United States:

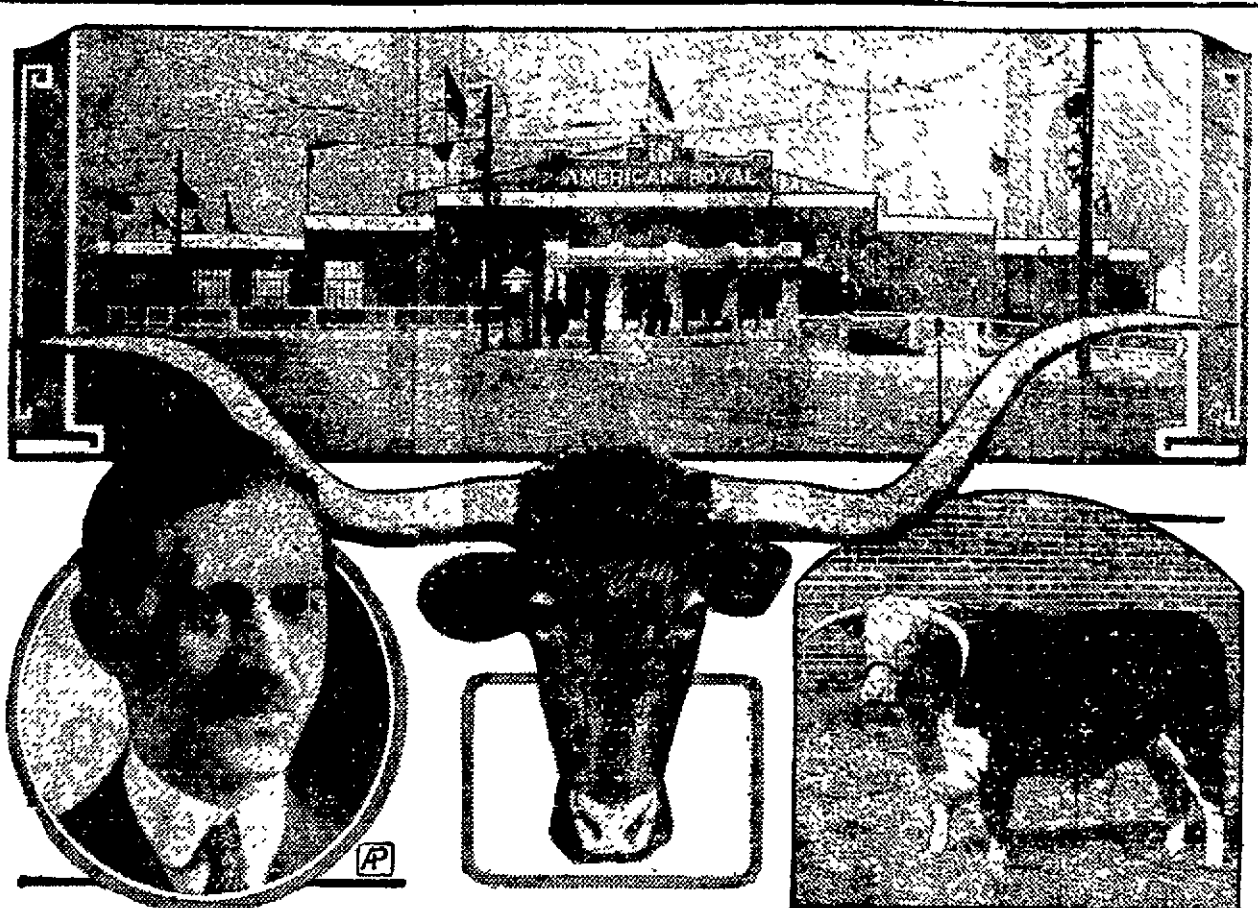

Swiss cheese is the cheese which American storekeepers sell from huge cartwheels or from 25 to 30 pound blocks. Most of the pale yellow Swiss has the characteristic "eyes" which are of varying size and some of which hold a few harmless "tears" or drops of moisture. Some Swiss cheese is blind, it has no eyes.

Most popular in the amount produced in the state is the American or Cheddar type, usually a creamy or golden yellow in color, but merchandised in several shades of color.

Wisconsin's young, mild and creamy cheese is the "New York" type, well cured, highly flavored and not crumbly.

The producers assert that a first class American cheese has a fine and mellow flavor with a pleasant slight acidity. The texture should be smooth, and the color should be even and the rind

Better Breeding Decades Revealed At American Royal Livestock Show

New monarchs of the animal kingdom will be crowned at the American Royal Livestock show in Kansas City, Nov. 17 to 24. The show was inaugurated 30 years ago to encourage the breeding of better stock. Since then the "longhorn" (center) has been replaced by purebred beef strains such as the animal at the right. The American Royal "Palace" (above) has a floor area of six acres, and its "lord chamberlain" is F. H. Servatius (inset), secretary of the exposition.

KANSAS CITY, MO. — (AP) — Blue bloods of the farm and the ranch are coming to Kansas City for the American Royal livestock show. The annual exposition, November 17 to 24, will be another occasion for viewing improvements made in domestic animals since the American Royal began 30 years ago to encourage the breeding of better stock.

In a shed covering 10 acres, pedigreed cattle of all breeds and ages will fill long rows of stalls; while equally aristocratic sheep and swine will go on display in numerous pens.

Horses, too, will be there, championing and pawing in the pride of ancestry and a record of service that has not ended with development of automobiles and trucks.

More than 6,000 entries have been made for this year's show. All will be paraded before the judges, vying for blue ribbons to grace their escutcheons and for cash prizes to fill the purses of their owners. Premiums at the American Royal this year exceed $400,000.

Livestock breeders come to the show to buy new sires as well as to exhibit the finest of their herds. One afternoon is set aside for the sale of each of the three leading breeds of beef cattle—Herefords, Shorthorns, and Aberdeen-Angus.

The association that makes possible the American Royal is a non-profit organization, existing solely as an encouragement to the livestock industry. William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, has praised it for "the spirit of service to the industry and to mankind."

Since it was founded in 1898 there has been a decided improvement in cattle produced throughout the northwest and the middle west. Many longhorns composed most of the herds on the ranges three decades ago, while the small farms had cattle of mixed strains. Now, nearly every animal brought to market is readily identified as belonging to a definite breed or dairy breed.

The first American Royal show was held in a tent and only Herefords were displayed. From year to year other groups of animals were added until the exhibits include every domestic creature from dogs to donkeys and cats to cattle. The exhibition now is housed in a "palace" of reinforced concrete, brick and tile construction, containing a floor area of six acres with a large arena for horse shows and parades. The building, situated in the stockyards district, was completed in 1922, the same year that marked the inauguration of F. H. Servatius as secretary of the executive officer of the show.

Should be smooth with a close-fitting cloth bandage, often removed by the retail merchant as he sells a portion of the cheese.

Limburger, as even persons least acquainted with cheese are aware, has a peculiar odor. Well-cured Limburger has a soft creamy texture. Most of the odor is in the cheese next to the rind, some specialists report which simplifies the use of the cheese for those who prefer less odor with their cheese. Brick cheese is much like Limburger, according to the process of manufacture, but the cured cheese is more mild. Good quality brick cheese should be clean-cut in shape with an unbroken rind and a smooth texture.

Edam and Gouda — They are Dutch cheese. The first is a ball-shaped cheese molded in a shape like a latter is a small cylinder of cheese four to five inches in height and ten inches in diameter.

Roquefort is a name associated with epicures with foods of the highest class. True Roquefort the French cheese-maker declares, is made from sheep's milk. Imitation Roquefort from cow's milk made in the United States is equally as rich as the milk of ewes by the addition of cream. This cheese is America, as in France, is given a peculiar flavor by the addition of moldy bread crumbs to the cheese curd. Other cheese with peculiar flavors are the English Stilton and Italian Gorgonzola.

Carbon disulphide is a good insecticide for fumigating stored grains, coarses, beans and peas. Amounts up to 20 pounds of the liquid material per 1,000 cubic feet are necessary to kill grain insects in ordinary rooms where the walls and floors are not especially tight. Since the vapor of carbon disulphide is highly inflammable, care should be taken to keep fire in any form from the room that is being fumigated.

Due to a big reduction in the price, production of rice in this country last year went down 41,999,000 pounds, to a total of 1,118,990,000 pounds.

DON'T DISTURB TREES, EXPERTS ADVISE FARMERS

Washington — (AP) — Trees, like people, lose adaptability with advancing age and a comparatively minor change in their environment may be fatal.

Entomologists of the department of agriculture say that transplanting almost always is a severe test for trees of considerable size and many transplanted trees are attacked by insects. If most of the large trees in a grove are killed, leaving only a border of trees or small groups, the survivors often suffer serious damage and die.

This may be the result of a disturbance of moisture conditions, and a change from general shade to large areas of sunbaked soil. Borers then may complete the deadly work.

STATE CORN CROP FOURTH HIGHEST EVER REPORTED

Potatoes Reduced by Disease—Flax and Clover Seed Less This Year

Madison — (AP) — Wisconsin's corn crop this year, estimated at 21,203,000 is the highest since 1925 and the fourth largest ever in this state, the federal-state bureau of crop and livestock reporting finds.

A report issued from the office of Walter Ebbins, statistician for the bureau, shows that there will probably be a big drop in potato production, an increase of probably forty per cent in tobacco production, greatly reduced clover seed production, a decline in flax and a "good" apple crop.

The announcement of the crop report shows that more than 70 per cent of this year's corn is of merchantable quality.

The report continues: Silage yields this year are also much better than they were a year ago when a poor corn crop was harvested. The average yield of silage per acre this year is estimated at 7.8 tons as compared with 6.3 tons a year ago, an increase in yield of silage over 20 per cent.

The corn crop and the silage production will be helpful in offsetting the rather low production of hay, on many Wisconsin farms this year. Last year the state had a record hay crop and a poor corn crop—this year a good corn crop and in many counties a rather small hay crop. The United States corn crop this year is estimated at 2,835,449,000 bushels as compared with 2,773,708,000 a year ago.

The outlook for potato production in the state is compared with twenty-four million bushels a year ago. The United States potato crop is now estimated at 465,631,000 bushels as compared with about four hundred seven million bushels last year.

A preliminary estimate of tobacco production places the Wisconsin 1928 crop slightly over forty-six million pounds, or an increase of about 40 per cent over a year ago. This is partly accounted for by a slightly larger acreage and also by better yields. Curing of the crop in the sheds has been favored by the October weather.

FLAX, CLOVER SEED LESS Clover seed production will be greatly reduced this year from the large crop of a year ago. This is an important source of farm income in Wisconsin, but due to the winter damage of last year only a small acreage will be harvested. According to Wisconsin Crop Reporters the average yield per acre on harvested fields this year is about one and one-half bushels.

Flax production has declined somewhat from last year, due principally to a reduction in acreage. The yield per acre is slightly higher than a year ago.

The apple crop is a good crop, the state's production being estimated at 2,158,000 bushels as compared with 1,200,000 bushels a year ago. The quality this year is better than last.

October was a favorable month generally though the amount of rain in some sections was excessive during the month and farm work progressed well in most counties. Temperatures were above normal.

Lloyd S. Tenny, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, has resigned to take an executive position with the Associated California Fruit Industries.

GIVE BROOD SOWS PROPER FOOD, IS EXPERTS' ADVICE

Care of Hogs Is Discussed in Bulletin Issued by Agricultural College

BY W. F. WINSEY
BULLETIN 400, written by F. B. Morrison, J. M. Fargo, and G. Bohstedt, the former of Cornell University, and the latter two of the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin, and issued by the college, is a clear, concise treatise in 21 pages of Food and Care of the Brood Sow and Litter.

The bulletin will be sent to any resident of the state who mails his request to Wisconsin College of Agriculture, Madison. Hog raisers should not only have the bulletin but they should use the up-to-date suggestions it contains.

The authors say: "Proper feed and care of the brood sow is one of the most important factors in securing a good profit from hogs. Each year thousands of farmers are grievously disappointed at farrowing time by seeing their possible profits vanish when their sows produce unsatisfactory litters. Either the litters are small or the pigs are so weak that they die, or survive only to be unprofitable runts. In most cases such results are due to a lack of proper feed and care of sows. Yet the needs of brood sows are relatively simple and easy to meet.

"These are the most important points in the successful feeding and care of brood sows and litters: "Well balanced rations which will furnish plenty of protein that is well balanced in composition.

"Rations which supply ample mineral matter and sufficient vitamins. "Rations that are laxative, instead of constipating.

"The right amount of feed—not too much or the sows will become fat. Plenty of exercise. Comfortable quarters, dry, roomy, well ventilated, and well lighted. Freedom from worms, lice, and fifth-sore infection.

"The simple ration which has given good results is one of alfalfa hay, and tankage. Let the sows eat what they want from a rack and feed a pound of tankage per day to each three or four sows. The condition of the sows will govern the amount of ear corn to feed.

"If more variety is desired, feed a mixture of ground corn 40 parts, ground oats 30 parts, standard middlings 20 parts, linseed oil meal 5 parts, tankage 5 parts, to alfalfa. For old sows increase the standard middlings to 25 parts and cut the linseed oil meal and tankage to 3 parts and 2 parts."

Although many of the stock medicines now on the market are of considerable value in the treatment of certain diseases, there is said to be a large number of others being sold under advertising which claims them to be sure cures for almost every ailment in the barnyard.

According to Dr. B. A. Beach of the veterinary science department of the university college of agriculture, there are no positive medical cures

Madison—Forty-four Holstein heifers at the University of Wisconsin agricultural experiment station are now entering the second stage of a long-time experiment to study light and control contagious abortion, mercurial ravager of dairy herds.

For two years, two groups of the young cows have been fed different rations, the first as good a feed as modern knowledge of livestock nutrition could provide and the second equally good in most respects but low in minerals and vitamins. The object has been to determine if there were any relations between the nutrition of cattle and the devastating disease. Milk production in both lots has been high and to date there has been no evidence of abortion.

With the rations remaining the same, the heifers are now being exposed to contagious abortion organisms. These will be given in the feed and the herd will also be exposed to cows which are known to be abortion spreaders.

Although scientists seldom indulge in speculation as to the possible results of experiments, the Wisconsin investigators are really curious to know if the poorly fed heifers will be more susceptible to the dangerous abortion organisms than the group receiving the first class feed.

Young heifers wintered at the U. S. Range Livestock Experiment Station, Miles City, Mont., on bluejoint hay for 84 days showed a gain of 45 pounds with a daily ration of 20 pounds of hay. Another lot required 23 pounds of alfalfa hay for the same period to make a gain of 51 pounds.

Carbon disulphide is a good insecticide for fumigating stored grains, coarses, beans and peas. Amounts up to 20 pounds of the liquid material per 1,000 cubic feet are necessary to kill grain insects in ordinary rooms where the walls and floors are not especially tight. Since the vapor of carbon disulphide is highly inflammable, care should be taken to keep fire in any form from the room that is being fumigated.

WISCONSIN RANKS SIXTH IN POULTRY INDUSTRY

According to the latest available figures from the Department of Agriculture, Wisconsin ranks sixth in the growth of its poultry industry among all the states of the union. In the five years before 1926, the total egg production in this state increased 14 per cent. The number of eggs produced per hen increased 65 per cent.

This increase in egg production per hen—although less in some states—is said by agriculture statisticians to be due mainly to the better selection of stock and better care of it. New scientific information on the care of poultry is another cause of the increase. Such developments as the utilization of the ultraviolet rays of the sun which supply the much needed vitamin D, by means of colored glass windows for hen houses, perfected brooders of great size and scientific methods of feeding advocated by poultry experimental stations have all played their part in the countrywide increase in egg production during the past few years.

A recent letter of Secretary Jardine to C. C. Teague, chairman of the American Institute of Cooperation, yields the information that

One highly advertised remedy for abortion, which at the time was so enjoying a wide sale in this state, was discovered to be nothing more than a compound of brown sugar and bran. There is at present no arrangement in this state by which framers can send in questionable products for free analysis by the state, but it is hoped that in time a system may be set up here similar to that of Kansas.

Correspondence is at present being carried on with various livestock breeders in all portions of the state to ascertain their opinions on the problem and extent to which they are being defrauded.

"Famous First Ladies"

Sarah Childress Polk was a strict Presbyterian. Upon taking residence in the White House she banished dancing and discontinued the custom of serving refreshments at the presidential receptions. She was a daughter of Tennessee, however, and her hospitality, affability and charm won her many friends. Washington "intellectuals" found her their match.

Mrs. Polk was succeeded as first lady by Mrs. Zachary Taylor. Gossip had it that Mrs. Taylor smoked a pipe in the White House, but this has been authentically denied.

Mrs. Taylor was the wife of a soldier and had shared the lot of her husband, who had lived at forts and camps. She was refined, however, and of a warm, kindly nature.

Once, at a family dinner in the White House, President Taylor, after telling an anecdote of army life, turned proudly to Senator Jefferson Davis and said, "You know my wife was as much of a soldier as I was." Mrs. Taylor's health failed and she was unable to take part in the long routine of state dinners.

400 ATTEND MEETING OF CHEESE MEN

Federation Approves Pro- posed Changes in Tar- iff Regulations

Kaukauna—Four hundred representatives of the twenty-seven cheese factories in the Neenah Branch of the National Cheese Producers Federation attended the fifth annual convention in the City Auditorium here Wednesday. Mayor W. C. Sullivan delivered the addresses of welcome. Other speakers were F. G. Swoboda, manager of the cheese producers' federation, Gus Brickbauer, president of the federation, William Hutter, vice president, Charles Grode, a director of the federation, B. E. Billington, fieldman, and Robert Amundson, county agent. Bud Sager, Kaukauna, led the singing and sang several solos. A group of Kaukauna women served lunch at noon.

Cooperative marketing of farm products, quality production, stabilized prices through seasonal surpluses, self help of farmers to get farm relief, a compact, working union of all farmers, and a larger working capital for the National Cheese Producers Federation, were the big ideas introduced, argued and urged by the speakers.

Mr. Swoboda traced the growth of the cheese federation from its beginning in Plymouth to the present. The past year was the most successful year in the history of the federation. Along with the expansion of the federation has gone an improvement of the quality of the cheese turned out. In the first of a series of four years for instance, 23 per cent of the product was Fancy cheese, the second 37 per cent, the third 37 per cent and the fourth and last 42 per cent.

"You should make your cheese so good that the consumer will not be content with one piece but will call for the second and third helping," said Mr. Swoboda.

"This idea of trying to keep out foreign cheese by a tariff and at the same time trying to make our own cheese out of dirty milk, has nothing to commend it. These are practically no limit to the domestic consumption of cheese provided the consumer gets the quality he desires."

"The federation has been carrying on an investigation the past year on the effect that dirt in milk has on cheese manufactured from it."

"We must produce quality cheese for our own good as well as that of the consumer. What are we producing milk for? What are we producing cheese and butter for? These are questions that we as milk, cheese and butter producers should ask ourselves. Are we producing these articles for human consumption? If we are we should be careful about their quality."

Mr. Swoboda paid his respects to the local competitors in this fashion. "Letting cheese and butter competitors close up your cheese factories is like removing the lightning rods from your farm buildings. In both cases you are without the protection you need, after the removal."

"In accordance with a resolution passed at an annual meeting, the federation incorporated a year ago at $500,000.00, $250,000.00 worth of stock was sold," said Mr. Brickbauer.

"The stock was sold to supply capital to pay farmers for cheese on delivery. Raising that money was the biggest monkey wrench the federation ever threw into the machinery of the dealers."

"The federation through yearly periods of surpluses and market depressions without sacrifice the cheese federation should have sold another $10,000 worth of stock."

"At times of the year when prices of cheese are low or when the cheese market breaks, we should hold cheese, and pay the farmers, and wait for the market to improve."

"We would like to do these things. Look at these other fellows with their mergers of creameries and milk distributing plants. What shall we do? Let us get together at least in the strongest kind of a union. A compact, working organization of all farmers is the strongest force that can be placed opposite them. Let us get together. If it were not for what the cheese federation has already done you would now be getting at least two cents less for your cheese."

Mr. Hutter described the great cooperative organizations that are lately visited in the west and drew a lesson from each one of them for the farmers of Wisconsin.

Mayor Sullivan said that if farmers ever get the relief they are after they must get it through their own organization and effort and cease depending on the protection promises of politicians. To get this relief, farmers must organize after the manner supplied by industry and labor.

Labor is 50 per cent organized, industry 25 per cent and agriculture 20 per cent. Industry is 90 per cent efficient, agriculture 75 per cent and labor 85 per cent. In marketing and taking care of surpluses, industry is

Charles Grode was nominated to succeed himself as director of the federation and J. W. Armstrong was elected as delegates to the annual meeting of the cheese federation.

Ledyard Former Name Of Kaukauna's South Side

Kaukauna—Members of the Kaukauna Rotary club enjoyed talk by Adolph Mill, postmaster, who described conditions of the city when he was a youth at the club's regular meeting in Legion hall Wednesday noon.

Mr. Mill said he was born in Cleveland, Wis. and came to Kaukauna when he was five years of age. He moved to the south side of the city, then called Ledyard. The city was then the real city of story books with the town pump in front of the building in which Ganters New store is located. People from Ledyard all came there for their water. The building itself was built by his father, he said, for the first National Bank to locate in.

"Early in life I became interested in music probably due to the fact that my home life was musical," he said. "My brother and sister both played numerous musical instruments. At the age of 10 I joined the Juvenile band as the youngest member. This is where I got my real start in the musical line which I have followed all my life excepting a few years."

Mr. Mill said that when he started high school it was the "little red school house" located on the 15 land. This is interesting to note as the present high school building is also situated on the Island. Before Mr. Mill finished school it was transferred to the Park school building.

One of the most interesting places in this section of the country at that time was located in the city just west of LaFollette park, and was called Eden Park. It was the scene of many excursions both by rail and water. It was operated by a landscape gardener and attracted much attention from visitors, he brought out.

"It had an old rustic bridge across a beautiful lagoon, a rock cavern in which a bear lived, many wonderful flower beds, a fountain and a band stand," he said.

After graduating from high school Mr. Mill said he went to work in a hardware store in town for a few years and then in the office of the Union Bag Paper company. He also taught music and gave up his position with the paper company on account of his health. He started a music store which he operated until he gave it up to take duties as postmaster in the local postoffice.

EDITOR-HUMORIST WILL BE SPEAKER AT ANNUAL DINNER

Fun and Entertainment Promised at Meeting, Says
Chamber Secretary

A rare treat of fun and entertainment mingled with common sense about farming and its development is promised those who hear Charles F. Collisson, agricultural editor, lecturer, and humorist of the Minneapolis Tribune, who will speak at the annual farm-city dinner Thursday evening, Nov. 22, at the Methodist church dining room.

Endowed with the happy faculty of making dry subjects interesting and entertaining, Mr. Collisson is in great demand all over the country as a speaker on farming and rural topics. He has addressed bankers, conventions, groups of business men and farmers, and his message of optimism and a forward-looking outlook for agriculture is always received with enthusiasm.

He is a warm advocate of good farming, better livestock and cooperation between town and country as effective means for solving most of the farmer's difficulties.

Mr. Collisson advocates these things in so forceful a manner that he carries his hearers right along with him. His addresses are always enlivened with a ready wit and sparkling humor that delights his audiences and compel them to ask for more.

"Nobody goes to sleep when Collisson talks about farming," a Minnesota paper recently commented. "Everybody sits up and listens for fear of missing some of the good things. He tells stories, good ones, and puts them in right where they belong."

Mr. Collisson has won fame, not only with his talk The Cow Path to Prosperity but as a writer on rural topics as well. For more than six years he has been in charge of a campaign on his paper for building up the agriculture of the northwest. The project is backed by a special appropriation of $50,000 by the publisher of the paper who also is owner of a large farm in the Northwest where he breeds Holstein cattle and Percheron horses.

Both in his columns and on the platform, Mr. Collisson advocates a closer cooperation between farmer and business man, an enlargement of the dairying and livestock industry, the raising of more feeding and forage crops instead of the single-crop system of grain growing, and the development of farm flocks of sheep and poultry. They show conclusively the better profits from diversified farming, and the enrichment of the soil.

CHARGE AGAINST FOUR BOYS IS DISMISSED

The cases against four Menasha boys, arraigned in municipal court Monday on a charge of stealing blankets, were dismissed on motion of District Attorney John Lonsdorf when they agreed to return the blankets and pay costs of action started against them. The boys were Melvin Smith, Boyd Collins, Lawrence Macklin, and Leo Podolski.

The youths were arrested Monday by a sheriff's deputy on a warrant sworn out by Herman Abitz, constable of the town of Grand Chute. The blankets were stolen from automobiles parked at the Harry Strutz soft drink parlor on E. Wisconsin-ave, the night of Nov. 3, it was charged.

LIVE BADGER MAY FIND NEW HOME IN ALICIA PARK ZOO

A live badger, recently captured by Lawrence Gormering of the town of Freedom, will probably find its permanent home in the Appleton zoo at Alicia park, providing the captor so decides.

The animal was apprehended in an open field on the Gormering farm and was taken alive after a chase over the field. It is now being fed and taken care of by Mr. Gormering. Badgers are said to be scarce in this section of the country.
